Peace—What Next?
Dog Began to Bite Pig
Grasshoppers, Floods, Riots
Capital Never Fights
—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921

The peace treaty with Germany is arranged at last, and on a basis to which America cannot object, since we get as much out of the Versailles treaty as we choose to take—most of it complimentary.

Getting back to business is the next thing, and the first business ought to be, finding work—by government in initiative and backing—for six million idle men in this country.

The United States managed instantly to find ten thousand millions for friends in Europe, and it is finding now hundreds of millions for distressed private owners of railroads, also forgiving them their debts for an indefinite period.

A country that can do so much for foreigners and for one class at home could well afford to find work for its idle millions—especially as there is so much national work that needs doing.

Your statesmen say they are lending five hundred millions of your money to the railroads "to stimulate business." The idea is that the roads will begin to buy steel rails and cars, the mills will begin to hire men and prosperity will begin booming. It is to be the old story, "fire began to burn stick, stick began to beat dog, dog began to bite pig, etc."

But how many of the 500,000,000 dollars do you think will really reach workingmen after getting into financiers' hands? One-tenth of the total would be a generous guess. They will spend ten public dollars to put one dollar in the pockets of the idle—rather costly prosperity.

Grasshoppers in an army ten miles wide have been eating Russian crops, says Albert A. Johnson, farming expert, now in Russia. Floods following extreme drought are destroying values in Switzerland, hundreds of villages in China are wiped out by flood—as though famine there were not enough. Bloody riots in India, where a peaceful "non-resister" stirs up trouble. Russian "reds" are shooting dozens of their officers, including a few women, and in America small armies of armed miners are battling sheriff's forces.

All that you read at a glance in one newspaper. Once war and trouble start, they seem to keep going.

Western railroads say they can't possibly cut freight rates on grain, it would mean almost $100,000,000 loss. They say grain elevator owners are the profiteers, and advise farmers to get after men that market grain.

That is what North Dakota tried to do—thus getting itself boycotted by the banks. If big insiders, railroad men, grain men, etc., should begin telling unpleasant truths about each other, improvement might come.

But the intelligent owning men rarely tell each other. They leave that to various foolish classes of workingmen. "There is no I. W. W. fighting any A. F. L. in capitalism—it knows too much about the value of unity.

The accident to the flying ship ZR-2 causes wise ones to say that airships of such great length can never work safely. That is what they said of the steamer Great Eastern, when she was found a failure, but she would seem small compared with the ships building today.

The ZR-2 disaster would interest old Count Zeppelin if he were still here. Who was it, by the way, that arranged for English builders of airships to experiment with American lives and money? Also, who was it that persuaded the government to spend hundreds of millions building wooden ships, costing $6000 each—and now sold for $2,000, and lucky to get it?

"Prepare for revenge," Count Waldersee advises Germans at a demonstration intended to make emperors popular once more. But the Berlin crowd was not enthusiastic. The Germans have had all the "revenge" and all the Hohenzollerns they need for the present. Their inclination is to work, while other nations fight and maintain big armies and navies. It is not a bad program.

Arthur Ransome, who has preferred giving facts as he found them to imagining things about Russia, reports that the Bolshevist autocracy is drifting back to capitalism rapidly. Tchicherin revealed the drift to old times in a recent speech.

Communists are bound to learn that love of individual property, cultivated in men for a hundred thousand years, cannot be extracted like an old tooth, by Karl Marx or any theory.

Capitalism, with its bills of exchange, bank currency, interest charges, is simply a convenient invention for getting necessary things done. The President of Guatemala found it would not work when they tried to get rid of religion, and that Voltaire was right when he said it would have been necessary to invent a god had no god existed.

Capitalism is a working machine, it would have been created, had it not grown. The job is to control, not eliminate it.

On the other hand, capital should have brains enough to realize that its fight against union labor is as stupid and as dangerous to this country as Communism's attack on capital is dangerous to Russia.

Sinn Fein Leaders Meet to Consider Reply

DEBATING NEXT MOVE IN PEACE CRISIS

Anxiety Among Dublin People Apparently Not Shared by Officials

Dublin, Aug. 27 (By the Associated Press).—Members of the Irish Republican Parliament met at the Mansion House here today to consider the situation which has developed from the firm stand of Prime Minister Lloyd George relative to a settlement of the Irish controversy.

The message from the Prime Minister arrived here last night, and its intimation that the British government would not consider any unreasonable delay in continuing negotiations caused some apprehension among the people.

Leaders of the Dail Eireann and members of the cabinet of Eamon de Valera appeared, however, not to consider that the situation had become any more delicate than it had been since the exchanges began.

Commenting on the letter from Mr. Lloyd George, the Freeman's Journal said today:

"In our opinion, the Prime Minister's latest communication bears the construction which the Premier of the Union of South Africa put upon the original offer from the British government."

The Irish Independent urged the Prime Minister to readjust or modify the conditions to which the Irish leaders have taken exception, and said the alternative would be a renewal of war "on a scale that would appall humanity and would ultimately discredit and disgrace England."

"With the will to make peace on both sides," the newspaper said, "it ought to be possible to arrive by a conference at a basis upon which a settlement that is honorable and satisfactory to both sides could be effected."

The Irish Times said the immediate effect of Mr. de Valera's note to London and the reply of Prime Minister Lloyd George had been to bring negotiations back to the political point.

"The undoubted gravity of the situation calls for cool heads and clear minds on both sides of the Irish Sea," the newspaper added. "A warlike exchange of notes could serve no useful purpose. Sooner or later some definite decision must be reached."

England Insists Erin Must Stay in Empire

By Associated Press.

London, Aug. 27.—Ireland cannot be permitted to withdraw from the British empire. This is the outstanding feature of the note sent to Dublin yesterday by Prime Minister Lloyd George, following consideration by the cabinet of the whole Irish situation.

Mr. Lloyd George declared he would be glad to continue negotiations with Eamon de Valera, but warned the Irish leaders that a needless prolongation of the conversations might wreck the chance of an agreement once more.

Newspapers today generally approved of the Prime Minister's reply, and expressed satisfaction that Mr. Lloyd George had declared he was willing to continue negotiations with. The Morning Post, which maintained the most conservative view, urged the Sinn Fein leaders to recognize the unalterable stand for union which had been made by the government. It advised that terms be reached on that basis. Mr. De Valera was told that he was "discussing the situation in the spirit of an impracticable doctrinaire."

"Until Mr. De Valera descends to earth from the cloudy heights," the newspaper continued, "no progress is possible. He has assured Great Britain he has not the slightest desire to renew hostilities and that not a shot will be fired unless the Sinn Fein wills it, but it is doubtful if, otherwise, he correctly interprets the opinion of the majority of his followers. It might

MINERS' BATTLE RENEWED

IDENTIFIED IN BOND SALE

Suspect in $125,000 Theft at South Station Faces Bank Employes

New progress in clearing up the mystery surrounding the theft of $125,000 worth of Liberty Bonds from a safe in the office of the paymaster at the South Station was made today, according to the police, when employes of the Metropolitan Trust Company identified Minot Guild, twenty-six years old, of the Charlesgate Hotel, Boston, as the man who sold that company a number of Liberty Bonds a year ago.

Guild, who was arrested in Providence yesterday while trying to cash Liberty bond coupons also was identified today as the person who successfully disposed of Liberty bond coupons at Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn, Medford and Cambridge.

It was announced today at police headquarters, where Guild is held as a "suspicious person," that employes of various banks and trust companies of Providence would arrive in Boston later in an effort to identify the prisoner as the man who has recently cashed Liberty coupons.

So far Guild has refused to discuss the case. When arrested at the Providence National Bank of Commerce he declined to make any statement or to explain how the bonds, which are declared by the police to bear the number of some of the bonds taken from the South Station, came into his possession.

He was brought to Boston in an automobile by Inspector John A. Dewey of the Boston police and Fisherton detectives who have been working on the bond case. On the way in to this city he maintained almost absolute silence about himself, his history and his doings. He did admit that he had been married and divorced.

Guild is said to have been a heavy gilling today, but managed to evade many of the questions asked by the police, though he is working to answer everything freely.

His arrest is the first in connection with the disappearance of the bonds, the theft of which was completely baffled the local police and private detectives put on the trail.

DU PONT FAVORS EQUAL DISARMAMENT FOR ALL

New York, Aug. 27.—Asked for a statement of his views on the coming disarmament conference at Washington, Senator T. Coleman du Pont wrote to the International News Service from Colorado Springs as follows:

"The question you raise as to the possible achievements of a body that is going to meet on disarmaments is rather like asking, 'How long is a piece of string?' and I think the only answer that can be made is that would be intelligent at this time would be to say that I hope for progress.

"I am for disarmament if it does not affect preparedness, which means, of course, that others should disarm in approximately the same per cent as we go and at the same time."

Mrs. Nellie Hest, employed in the office of the signal plant, was at work at her desk when the explosion came. A heavy clock on a shelf above her head was toppled off and struck her, stunning her for a moment. She recovered at once, however, and telephoned immediately for the police and the ambulances from the nearby hospitals.

Mrs. Mary Sparks, No. 124 Valley street was in her kitchen when the concussion hurled her to the ground. At the same moment the stump of a tree weighing about 600 pounds, which had been standing in front of the plant was blown over the roof of her home and fell into her back yard, smashing a small shed.

MOTHER FEARS FOR LIFE OF FILM STAR

Hollywood Girl, Missing Four Days, Upset by Husband's Alleged Infidelity

Los Angeles, Aug. 27.—Fearing that her daughter, Jean Riley, twenty years old, pretty screen actress, was been kidnaped, murdered or has committed suicide, Mrs. Dora Gray of Hollywood has appealed to the police to conduct a search for her.

The girl mysteriously dropped from sight on Tuesday after telling her mother she intended to go in town to answer an advertisement for help wanted.

There was nothing unusual in her demeanor, according to the mother, except that she wore a brooding, melancholy attitude that has characterized her ever since the unhappy ending to her recent marriage.

The girl and her husband, W. H. Mooney, have been separated since June. She filed suit for divorce against him on June 29, in which she charged that she had caught him in the act of a "soul kiss" with another woman.

She and Mooney eloped to Riverside on April 3 and were married.

A reconciliation seemed imminent last month, according to the mother, but Miss Riley changed her mind.

The donation by Mr. Waldron is more than twice as large as any other given to the Cuneo fund, the next largest being the $547 taken up at the Commercial A (5 hours at) Mechanics Building a week ago.

The show was a tremendous success. The Boston Traffic Squad Band made a hit. The audience showered the policemen musicians with applause. The band paraded up Hanover street escorted by the color bearers of the North End Post of the American Legion, followed by hundreds.

DEPUTIES TURN BACK INVADERS

Shots Exchanged in Fighting Near Boone-Logan County Line in "Mine War"

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—A large body of armed men seeking to enter Logan County was this morning turned back by a force of deputy sheriffs on the Boone-Logan County line, according to a statement given to the Associated Press over the long-distance telephone by an official connected with Governor E. F. Morgan's executive office at Charleston, West Virginia.

It was added that there had been no casualties, although many shots had been exchanged. Further, that this the informant was unable to say.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, reports began to circulate about Blissfield, Huntington and Charleston that an engagement had been fought near Blair, close to the Boone County line. All efforts to confirm the rumors failed until communication was established with the Governor's office.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE SILENT.

It has not been determined whether the body of men engaged by the deputies was a part of the Mary-Mingo murderers, who yesterday were pertinaded by F. Keeney, president of District 17, United Mine Workers of America, to abandon the march and return to their homes.

A long distance telephone call to the office of Don Chafin, Logan County sheriff, early today met with no response. Similar calls to a private establishment and a hotel were unproductive. The party answering the telephone at the hotel laconically remarking:

"I have nothing to say. This is Logan County's business and no one else's."

FIGHTING NEAR BLAIR.

At 6 o'clock this morning the telephone operator at Logan is said to have told the Charleston gazette that firing then was in progress near Blair; that the deputies were on top of a mountain overlooking the town, the armed men at the foot.

Firing, it was added, had been spasmodic up to that time. When it started could not be ascertained.

Attaches of Governor Morgan's office were constantly in direct com-

Marching Miners Start Back to Homes

Madison, W. Va., Aug. 27.—A train of six coaches sent here to carry back to Charleston the advance party of Marmet marchers who abandoned the journey in Mingo County late yesterday at the request of C. F. Keeney, arrived before daylight this morning.

The men assembled aboard immediately. Most of them had spent the night walking and idling about the village. Although they showed signs of restlessness during the last few hours of their stay here, there was no disorder.

Little groups everywhere were to be seen talking and smoking. Many apparently were weary, and it was evident to those who saw them walk about that not a few were foot-sore.

STRAGGLING HOME.

The main body of marchers was scattered along Indian and Lens creeks, facing northeast and straggling toward home, in compliance with Keeney's wishes. The spirits of the men did not appear to have been affected by the sudden change of plan.

If there was discontent, it was not evident. The same carelessness that characterized the march in the direction of the Mingo County bank of the Tug River was in evidence today as on the hike the other way.

During the southward march, the several groups remained close together. Today, with their homes as their objective rather than a distant county their destination, those of the men who have families apparently were speeding up he journey, presuming that the space between the bands distinguished family men from those not so endowed.

District President Keeney spent the night here with the contingent awaiting transportation to Charleston. Aside from expressing satisfaction, he had nothing to say for publication.

Retreating Army of Miners at Charleston

By Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 27.—Charles F. Keeney, United Mines Workers leader, and the vanguard of miners marching from Marmet to Mingo, which Keeney turned back at Madison, Boone County, yesterday, under orders from Brigade-General Bandholtz, U. S. A., arrived in Charleston soon after 8 o'clock this morning.

At the same time General Bandholtz was starting from Charleston to go over the line of march and see that the "army" had actually disbanded and was going home.

According to testimony of government witnesses, Legendre left $1,400 in cash in an auto while he entered the amusement park at Nantasket Beach. He returned in time to see a form leap from his car to a nearby truck and speed away. The men were captured after a chase, but the money had disappeared.

The men, who were captured by Patrolman Mahoney and Special Officer Philbrick of the Metropolitan Park police, are Joseph Bronski, Leon Abel, Nathan Waterman and Edward Goldman, all of Roxbury.

Not Only Are Newspaper Men Barred, but No Statements Will Be Issued

By International News Service.

Howden, England, Aug. 27.—Formal inquiry into the loss of the dirigible ZR-2 was opened today, following the preliminary investigation at Hull where the wreckage still lies in the Humber River.

The sessions of the court will be secret, an agreement having been reached upon this point by the British and American naval and air authorities.

There are seven officers on the board of inquiry, with Major-General Sir John Salmond presiding. It was announced that not only would newspapermen be excluded, but no statements would be issued as well.

The British authorities said that every facility had been extended to the American government to make the most complete investigation of its own behalf.

Navy to Stop Building ZR-2 Type Dirigibles

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 27.—There will be no further commitments for airships similar to the ZR-2 at this time, the Navy Department announced today. At the same time it was stated definitely that the navy will go ahead with its present program, including the construction of the Z R-1, slightly smaller and much stronger than the big ship which crashed in England.

Officials of the department expressed doubt as to whether Congress will be asked at the next session for additional funds for navy dirigibles.

BULL CAUSES NEW RACETRACK RECORDS

A small-sized panic ensued when a bull ran riot at Combination Park, Medford, driving racegoers to the highest points of the grandstand and setting new track speed records as horses fled to safety.

The bull was released by some small boys while its guardian was absent. The lads waved red paper in front of him and their visions of Spanish excitement were soon realized as the bull's wrath increased. Someone shouted, "Look out for the bull," as it started on its first charge. A crowd of children who had climbed to the grandstand for a free peep at the horse races got the bull mixed up with a policeman and called Patrolman Tainior, who was trying to protect them. After much maneuvering the bull was captured.

RUNAWAY SCATTERS HOMEGOING CROWDS

Hundreds passing through Dewey square at the height of the evening rush hour stampeded in all directions, when a two-horse American Railway Express wagon topsied over, and one of the horses, breaking free, scampered over sidewalks until it was finally caught on South street.

The driver, Frank Gruttner of No. 50 Circuit street, Roxbury, and his helper, Joseph Cooney, both jumped in time, and were uninjured. The rear wagon wheels caught in the car tracks turning from Federal to Summer street. The wagon skidded and then tipped over.

LAW SHELTERS BATHER WHO IGNORED GARMENTS

New York, Aug. 27.—Albert Hicksman finished his morning plunge in a Brooklyn free bath and started home. Above his neck was a smile. Below it his shirt and trousers should have been, but were not. Patrolman Frederick Bye rubbed his eyes, looked again, and jumped at the apparition.

"I want to get under something, quick," said Hicksman. "Your wish is granted," retorted Bye. "You're under arrest."

MENTAL ANGUISH OF HORSE WORTH $100

Pittsfield, Aug. 27.—Judge Charles L. Hibbard of the District Court decided that a horse can collect for mental anguish. James Curtis of Pittsfield sued the Manufacturing Trucking Company for $1,000 for the action in which he claimed that his horse had become so nervous from an accident in which it had figured with the defendant's truck that he could sell it afterward for only $95 because of excitability. Before the accident the horse was worth $250. Judge Hibbard found for the plaintiff for $100.

168 MERMAIDS RACE TODAY IN CHARLES

100,000 Persons Expected to Attend Boston American Big Free Carnival

With 168 dashing mermaids entered in the main event, the Boston American's thirteenth annual water carnival takes place this afternoon in Charles River Basin, Back Bay. It is expected that 100,000 spectators will witness the various events. Everything is free.

The 1½ mile swim for girls for the championship of New England is the chief feature. It will start at 2 o'clock from the float of the Metropolitan Park Commission, near the Union Boat Club.

The girls will swim up stream, in plain view of the thousands of spectators on the esplanade, in a stake boat near Harvard Bridge. They will swim around the boat from the left and then back to the starting point.

BEST SWIMMERS ENTERED.

For this classic event many of the best girl swimmers in New England have entered, including the four girls who finished first last year and the winner of the 1919 contest. Because of the keen rivalry of these five girls it is expected that a new record may be established today.

These favorites are Olive Holland of Wollaston, who broke the record last year by winning first place in 39 minutes, 11 seconds; Miss Ruth Norwood of New Bedford, who finished second; Lolah M. Squires of Cambridge, who won third prize, and May Eckford of Lawrence, who came in fourth. Friends of Miss Irene Demars of Lodlow, who won first prize in 1919, believe she will be up with the leaders today.

Every possible convenience for the girls' comfort has been arranged. Several capable matrons will have charge of their dressing tent to assist them in preparing for the big swim.

FREE BAND CONCERT.

From 1 to 5 p. m. there will be an excellent band concert by At Massey's First Engineers' band, Frederick Wing, leader. This concert will be furnished by the city of Boston park department. The city will be represented by Mayor Peters, who is keenly interested in swimming and will present the prizes to the winning mermaids; James B. Shea, commissioner of Boston park department, and William P. Long, assistant park commissioner.

Charlie Toth, who swam from Charlestown bridge to Boston Light two weeks ago under difficult conditions and will attempt the English channel swim next Spring, will give an exhibition of three-quarters of a mile from the stake boat, near Harvard bridge, to the Metropolitan float in plain view of all the spectators.

SEE "THE HUMAN CORK."

Daniel Donnel, of Worcester, called "The Human Cork," will give special exhibitions of scientific floating at points along the river wall on the Boston side. His stunts have puzzled thousands of persons. He says he cannot sink. The natives of the Sea Shell Islands taught him how to float in a scientific manner through proper distribution of weight and abdominal breathing.

An exhibition of clever diving is to be given by several men and women swimmers at the conclusion of the girls' race.

30 LIFEGUARDS ON DUTY.

Among the swimmers who are expecting to get an ovation today are Claire and Edna Mathieu, nine-year-old Willimantic, Ct., twins, who finished in good condition in last season's swim. They will also participate in the diving exhibition at the end of the swim.

Every effort will be made to prevent accidents. Thirty lifeguards will patrol the course under direction of John J. Flaherty, the widely-known Revere life-saver. Physicians and nurses will be there to care for any who need their attention. Superintendent Wing, who has charge of the reservation, has made complete plans for preservation of order. It's going to be a big day. Everybody is invited to attend.

COMMISSIONER ALLEN SUES TREMONT TRUST MEN FOR $935,000

DEMAND OF $812,923 ON SWIGS

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen has filed eight suits and one bill in equity in the Superior Court for sums totalling $935,000 against Simon Swig, vice-president of the closed Tremont Trust Company, and a score of other persons or corporations in Boston and nearby cities. The suits are based upon the allegation that the money, in the form of loans, is owed the closed trust company and the Bank Commissioner has been unable to collect it. John P. Feeney is named among the defendants.

With the announcement of the court actions, Allen made public a list of what he designated as "Swig Family Loans," totally to $812,923.23. These "family loans" are secured by collateral, which, in the opinion of Allen's department, has a value of only $100,000. The individual suits against Simon Swig total $350,000.

Simon Swig announced today that a suit for $500,000 damages, naming Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen as defendant, alleging that he has brought unfair charges against the members of the Swig family in connection with the closed Tremont Trust Company, was to be filed in Superior Court by Louis Swig of Taunton, one of the defendants, as the answer to the commissioner's charges that Swig and others owe huge sums which the company is unable to collect.

Simon Swig added that on Monday charges against Allen will be presented by him to the district attorney, seeking Allen's removal as bank commissioner.

NOTE COLLATERAL DISAPPEARS.

"We can and will show that, at the time it was closed, the Tremont Trust Company was the strongest, most solvent bank in Boston," declared Swig. "We have now on hand over $700,000 in Liberty bonds, $3,000,000 in cash and $4,500,000 in first class mortgages."

The bank commissioner charges that a mortgage on Swig's Roxbury residence, which was supposed to be included in the bank's assets, mysteriously disappeared prior to the taking over of the trust company's affairs by the bank commissioner. The mortgage, Allen states, was supposed to be security for a $15,000 loan made by the bank to the vice-president.

Allen charges there is evidence that the mortgage was taken by Judge Louis Swig, son of Simon Swig, stating that it would be recorded, but such action was never taken and efforts of the bank commissioner to obtain the mortgage have been futile. The bank commissioner is bringing suit in equity to obtain this mortgage and establish it as a first lien on Swig's Roxbury property.

According to the bank commissioner, a mortgage for $22,000 to the Guaranty Security Corporation was recorded a few days after the bank was closed. This mortgage at present stands as the first lien on the property.

In his statement regarding the suits the bank commissioner says that some loans were made to parties, "who report that they received no consideration therefor and signed the notes at Mr. Swig's request for some purpose of his."

$100,000 SUIT AGAINST SON.

Naming a "Simon Swig note for $50,000," Allen says that Swig has repudiated liability for this note, but says he cannot accept Swig's denial unless the records to be established in court and hence brings suit for the face of the note.

Allen charges that the collateral security on a note for $2,528 to the Pine Bluff Land Company, of which Swig was president disappeared from the bank a few days before the commissioner took possession. The commissioner charges that $20,000 appears to have been transferred from the profit and loss account of the trust company and credited in payment of Swig loans to Swig.

Commissioner Allen's statement regarding the filing of the suit follows:

"I am bringing eight actions at law and one bill in equity and I have asked the Tremont Trust Company as plaintiff in the Superior Court, Suffolk County. The actions are to be returnable the first Monday in October.

LOANS TO SWIG FAMILY.

1—Action at law against Simon Swig of Boston, for $234,000.

2—Action at law against Gilbert H. Noyes of Newton Highlands, Simon Swig and John P. Feeney of Boston; David I. Pierce of Greenfield and Louis Swig of Taunton, for $50,000.

3—Action at law against Zest Chocolate Company, a Massachusetts corporation, for $150,000.

4—Action at law against Louis Swig of Taunton for $150,000.

5—Action at law against Irving Berman, Alexander Immerman and Joseph Rudolph, all of Taunton, for $75,000.

8—Action at law against Jacob Brest, M. Sagarin and M. I. Brest, all of Brockton, for $75,000.

9—The bill in equity is against the Guaranty Security Corporation, a Massachusetts corporation, Louis Swig of Taunton and Simon Swig and Fannie Swig, both of Boston. (Total, $935,000.)

"When the Commissioner of Banks took possession of the Tremont Trust Company, he found among the assets of the bank a number of notes aggregating several hundred thousand dollars, which appear to represent loans to Simon Swig, members of his family, companies in which they are interested, or loans nominally made to other parties, who report that they received no consideration therefor and signed the notes at Mr. Swig's request for some purpose of his."

List of Those Sued as Tremont Trust Company Debtors

The men sued by Bank Commissioner Allen in behalf of the Tremont Trust Company and the amounts demanded from them follow:

Simon Swig, $350,000.

Gilbert H. Noyes of Newton Highlands, Simon Swig and John P. Feeney of Boston, David I. Robinson of Gloucester, Michael Regan of Newton, secretary to Swig; Harry Roberts of Brookline, treasurer N. E. Raincoat Co.; Frederick E. Pierce of Greenfield and Louis Swig of Taunton, $50,000.

Zest Chocolate Company, a Massachusetts corporation, $150,000.

PEGGY GRACE IS RECOVERING FROM POISON

Actress, Who Sued Dobbins, Took Overdose of Veronal While Despondent

Peggy Grace, moving picture star, and plaintiff in a $150,000 breach of promise suit filed last Spring against Robert M. Dobbins, is slowly recovering from an alleged attempt at suicide made a few days ago, when she sought to take her own life with an overdose of veronal, it was disclosed today.

"The next time I'll make a better job of it," she is said to have told friends after the unsuccessful attempt. "I'll jump in the river. I'm tired of life."

Miss Grace swallowed twelve veronal tablets, it is said, in the bathroom of the apartment occupied by herself and her mother at No. 405 Marlboro street. Shortly after taking the dose she fell to the floor in a paroxysm of pain.

Her mother, Mrs. P. J. Grace, rushed to the office of Dr. A. F. Christian, next door. She returned with her, and applied first aid measures that saved the girl's life. To-day he said she was out of danger.

It is said by her friends that a prime reason for the attempt at despondency is the suit she filed against Dobbins, a wealthy real estate dealer. All she got out of this, she is said to have asserted, was "a lot of undesirable publicity."

Coincident with the filing of her suit last Spring, her father also filed one against Dobbins, charging seduction. She shortly afterward applied for Dobbins' arrest on criminal charges, but a warrant was denied. The wide circulation given to her sensational charges, with the accompanying notoriety attaching to herself, is believed to have led her to thoughts of suicide.

MORGAN SAVED ROYALTY FROM "WIZARD"

Blocked Plan of "Wolves of Finance" to Entangle Crowned Heads

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The net spread by "The Wolves of Finance" encircled the globe, John T. Clinnin, Assistant United States District Attorney, said here. In its meshes were to be caught the world's greatest financiers and the crowned heads of Europe.

New disclosures revealed a new enterprise of the Worthington-French Syndicate. It was the organization of the Pacific Company, a $500,000,000 concern for developments of industries through Alaska, Alaska, Mexico and the United States.

Besides this new concern the other Worthington - French enterprises founded on alleged bogus securities appeared insignificant. The $500,000 and million-dollar concerns were mere babies when compared with this giant.

LITTLE BOOK GIVES DETAILS.

Details of the new schemes were learned when Mr. Clinnin secured possession of a little silver book. It had been the property of E. Harshman, secretary to Charles W. French, confederate of John W. Worthington.

The assistant district attorney was still engaged in digging secrets from the book. A hasty examination showed that in the flotation of the Pacific Company, British and other foreign capital was to be used. There were to be numerous subsidiary companies.

The Pacific Company was to have been a holding company for the Atlantic Bank, capitalized at $5,500,000, the Pacific Bank, capitalized at $2,500,000; the Pacific Trust Company with $1,250,000 and the Pacific Development Company, with a capital of $1,000,000.

Various other companies were to be organized, the stock to be controlled by the Pacific Company, the parent organization.

BRANCHES IN EUROPE.

Branches would be maintained in London, Paris, Victoria, B. C., and Ottawa, Ont., the book disclosed. From these tenacles all sections of the world were to be scored. Scores of little concerns would be scattered throughout the world to gather the savings of the common people.

An attempt to raise cash in London, in which the royal family was taken into confidence by the promoters, was indicated by the book. J. P. Morgan was given as one of the references and the names of scores of other wealthy and influential men of the world were used.

The English investors were ready to pay over their money when it occurred to Sir Gilbert Parker, who lived next to get Mr. Morgan's personal opinion of French. Mr. Morgan, it is said, then replied that he never heard of French or his company, and the deal was off.

BURGLAR SHOT TRYING TO GET INTO STORE

Proprietor Roused by Alarm Kills Man With Charge of "BB" Shot

Spofford, N. H., Aug. 27—David Slade, proprietor of the general store here, this morning shot and killed Gardner Hill, whom he found after attempting to break into his store. Hill was killed with a charge of "BB" shot fired from a rifle.

Ernest Deering, who lives next to the store, was aroused by Hill's attempt to force the door. He set off a burglar alarm connected with Slade's home nearby and that of a clerk.

Slade emerged from his home, the police claim, and when about 100 yards from the store, shot Hill without warning.

Hill ran from the front of the store to the rear, where his body was found by a citizen's posse called out by a sheriff to search for him. He was armed with a shotgun and revolver. Several holes had been drilled in the door of the store.

The shoes worn by Hill, who had been camping in adjoining woods for several months, were identified by Slade as having been stolen from him last Spring. No action has yet been taken by the police against Slade.

Women Voters to Cure All Political Ills? Experts Differ

If They Select Good Husbands They Should Select Good Candidates, Says Banker Fitzgerald.

By HAZEL CANNING

Only as a woman is a good wife and a good housekeeper is she suited to become a good voting woman.

Only as a woman is a good mother—or even a coquettish lass, keeping her lover guessing—is she fitted to take up the work of voting.

This is the statement of William F. Fitzgerald, Boston financier and speaker by avocation, to Massachusetts women's clubs.

The statement is taken up, with qualifications, by Miss Evelyn Weeks, young clubwoman of Wakefield. "I've got a lot of forever harping on the female strain when we speak of women in politics," said Miss Weeks. "I'd like to see the new voting women go into public life, just like a man.

"Theoretically, I would. But practically, I suppose the wit of Eve must still stand by the daughters of Eve, in public life as well as in the home. It would be interesting to me, however, to see women play the game for a little, forgetting that they are women."

Mr. Fitzgerald who, in connection with his talks to women's clubs, has studied the species woman, with delicate touches, says "If the power individual wife and mother could translate the qualities of her womanhood her motherhood into her public, collective citizenship, the world would be relieved of its present economical distress, shut downs, unemployment, business failures and lack of confidence, almost overnight."

This statement came apropos of an interview of Mrs. Evelyn Mangan, chairman of the League of Women Voters, of Essex County.

"The woman has not yet been born," said Mrs. Masury, "fit to represent us in Congress."

MEN VOTERS TO BLAME.

"Maybe not," retorted Brother Fitzgerald, "but women can lift us out of our present crisis, just the same, if they use in their voting the horse sense they generally use in selecting their husbands and managing them after they're selected; the common sense they use in developing their children.

Now just listen to the man. "Today," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "we are in what is vaguely called 'hard times.' Over five million men out of work. Distress in everywhere. Why—? Just because the drowsy female voter, in a single day, voted into office rascally and incompetent officials. Suppose, then, that today, when, each night, a new army of husbands go home and tell friend wife almost the identical thing:

"It's just here that the new women voters of Mrs. Evelyn Mangan's She should see that, as voters men have made a pretty bad mess of it. She should start right in on her husband a few pertinent questions. "Why couldn't you men have voted in officials who would have saved you from losing your job?" is the first question Johnny needs shoot. Mr. Husband; the rent man and the grocer insist he be paid. Why—how ever in the world could you men have tolerated officials in power who let us go rascally with poverty. I'll you came home this night, out of a job because the big rogues have taken your jobs away—when you voted into power?"

"Then, as to questions," continued the Boston financier, "which women should put to their men, coming home from the polls. All the women themselves should go out and help in educating their men. Consider that the welfare of the men—and the women—they represent is vitally involved in the wishes of political cliques or rascally business crooks.

ELECT RIGHT MEN.

"As women are good selecters of husbands, by and large, so they ought to be good selecters of candidates. Men work for the applause of women. Many women have, very wrongly, been too disposed to applaud the money-maker and not the wealth-producer.

"Unless, I suppose, is necessary to set the women thinking, that they in turn, may set the right men in seats of government. But, as women are naturally quick, I hope the lesson will soon be learned. Forthe cure is here. All she needs is to see it for herself. And it's better, as Mrs. Masury says, for women to vote for a man who shall represent her. Only let her pick him herself, by hand. Let her go away with the machine-made, ruin-wrecking, boss-chosen, political scalawag."

To which Miss Weeks agreed, with reservations still

"I always hate to hear a woman say another woman is not fitted to serve this or that, even in Congress," began Miss Weeks. "As a matter of fact, why aren't women fitted to sit in Congress? I think some women, whom I know, would be much more favorably with some men whom I have observed in public life. And I always hate to hear a man, like Mr. Fitzgerald, harping on the female strain, when he talks of the public duties of woman—theoretically, it always seems to me that the two should be kept quite separate. But practically, as you know, I think the gentleman is right.

"Certainly the present distress needs some cool-headed women, even of the men responsible. If ever any situation, foreign or domestic, needed a womanly reprimand, that situation is at hand. Mr. Fitzgerald says there is no need of the distress, at least here in America, because we have the wealth of the world within our boundaries. Then, it seems to me, the manipulators who let us drift into these dreadful times, should promptly be voted out, by good, womanly votes."

WOULD VOTE "LIKE A MAN"

Miss Evelyn Weeks, young Wakefield clubwoman, who would dismiss all thought of coquetries when considering women as voters. Rather than speak of them as women, merely, she would have them referred to as American voters.

AMERICAN MAN AND WIFE SLAIN BY MEXICANS

Postmaster at Ruby, Arizona, Is Victim of Bandits

By Associated Press.

Nogales, Ariz., Aug. 27.—Frank J. Pearson, postmaster at Ruby, Arizona, thirty-five miles west of here, and his wife were killed and his sister-in-law seriously wounded yesterday by seven armed bandits, believed to have been Mexicans, according to reports received here early today. The shooting took place in the postoffice after which the store which Pearson conducted in connection with the post office was looted.

First reports which were brought to the sheriff's office here by a man on horseback said that only Pearson was killed and that no one else was molested. Later, however, the army intelligence officer at Camp Stephen D. Little, near here, learned that Mrs. Pearson had been killed and her sister injured.

Sheriff George J. White of Santa Cruz county, who left for Ruby, took only five deputies with him, but left word here for a number of others to be ready to go to Ruby if he should send for them. No word had been received from the sheriff at midnight.

DISAPPOINTED SUITOR TRIES SUICIDE

Ice Cream Man Shoots Himself When Bride Fails to Arrive

Despondent because of the failure of his uncle in Italy to send him a young woman for a bride, according to agreement, Francesco Sottile, thirty years old, the dream peddler, inflicted a probably fatal wound on himself in a stable at No. 187 Franklin street, Cambridgeport, today.

The young man, with a bullet wound in his right side, was taken to the Cambridge Municipal Hospital in an unconscious condition, and was reported to be dying.

According to the police, Sottile, who lives with relatives at No. 34 Sidney street, Cambridgeport, has been in this country for some time. While corresponding with an uncle in Italy, the latter agreed to select a young and attractive woman and send her to this country to become the wife of the nephew.

Sottile, although he had seen neither the woman nor her photograph, and was believed to have even been ignorant of her identity, was overjoyed. He waited impatiently for the arrival of the ship bringing his prospective bride.

For some reason which the police could not learn the uncle failed to keep his share of the agreement and the girl did not leave Italy. Sottile brooded over the disappointment and appeared extremely despondent.

Early today he left the home of his relatives and went to the barn where he kept his horse and wagon. His bankbook and other effects were left in a neat pile on the table in his room.

Some time later a man named Brown, who parks his automobile in the stable with Sottile's horse, went to the barn and heard moaning. In a small harness room he found the unconscious and bleeding form of Sottile lying across a cot, with a revolver on the floor beside it.

ASSASSINATION MARKS RISE OF MONARCHISTS

Erzberger's Death Result of Revival of Militarist Activities in Germany

By International News Service.

Berlin, Aug. 27.—The assassination of Dr. Mathias Erzberger, former Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Finance, near Offenburg, Baden, marks a crisis in the increasing royalist and militarist activities in Germany, it was admitted today.

It is believed that the militarist and monarchist revival was responsible for the murder of Erzberger, who was the bulwark of republican and orderly observance of the Treaty of Versailles.

Both royalist and democratic newspapers condemned the murder in their comment today.

Chancellor Wirth has telegraphed his condolences and those of the Cabinet to Frau Erzberger, who accompanied her husband when he went to Baden to visit his mother.

Royalist and militarist activities have been more active this week than at any other time since the armistice.

Prince Eitel Friedrich and General Lindenfels reviewed the German World War veterans in a great military display in this city, and the ex-Kaiser sent messages showing sympathy for the demonstration from his retreat in Holland.

It is understood that militarist revivals have been planned throughout all Germany.

Army officers are again appearing in the streets in full uniform and decorations and the old military spirit is showing itself in other ways.

The government will make precaution to prevent outbreaks when the funeral is held.

Additional details from Offenburg show that Erzberger was walking along a highway in the Black Forest when attacked by two youths.

After the shooting began Erzberger jumped behind a bridge. The assailants walked off some distance, where they watched to make sure that their victim was dead. The body was discovered immediately afterwards, riddled with bullets, but owing to the legal requirements was allowed to lie by the roadside nearly an entire day.

When the police arrived they fenced off the entire neighborhood to facilitate the investigation by the police authorities.

BLACK AND TANS RAID HOTEL 9 TIMES

Shooting of Policeman in Macroon Leads to Repeated Outrages on Hostelry

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,
Famous New England Author and Journalist.

While they were talking in lines they never took their eyes off us. We were talking about London, and Paris and only pretending we were thoroughly at our ease.

We were in the room; they got up and went into the other room.

At 2 o'clock we ordered some food, and in the middle of the meal the proprietor of the hotel came in with the hotel register in his hand, looking very scared and very upset.

He said: "The Black and Tans are after you ever since you have been here. They have me persecuted to tell them who you are and what you were. I told them I didn't know. They have now sent me in with the hotel register to have you write your name and addresses so that they can see." We wrote our names and addresses.

NEVER PAY BILLS.

He said: "I am just giving you a hint. They will probably, very likely, come in and raid the house, probably bring a woman matcher. Life is terrible in this town."

Two or three more Black and Tans came in and ordered drink in the bar, but wanted to bring it in and drink it in the room where we were. The proprietor said they couldn't do it.

Finally they shut the bar at half past ten. He came in and from half lately a nervous wreck. He had us the most harrowing experiences with the auxiliaries and Black and Tans.

He was a very nice, gentle sort of young man, about 35. He was absolutely a nervous wreck. He told Mrs. L. and myself they run bills of thirty, forty and fifty pounds and they never pay a cent. He showed us checks that were dishonored.

RAIDED NINE TIMES.

They seized his motor car. Nine times his hotel has been raided by them, and they have looted it several times. He has an old aunt of 75. There was a policeman shot there a few weeks before this particular night that I spent in Macroon, and the following morning they started, as the result of this man being shot, to close all shops in Macroom. They went around, seeing red.

They rushed into this particular hotel and into where the old lady of 75 was and the bar. They seized liquor, and carried it out. They drank as much as they could and took as much as they could away with them. Then one of them who seemed to be rather ferocious drew drink, said to the old lady:

"What are you doing here"—calling her some insulting name—"keeping your eye on the till, I suppose?"

She said very quietly: "I am trying to keep my eye on everything."

So he swore a mighty oath and said: "If you don't get out of the bar this minute I will hit you," raising the whiskey bottle to hit her with it.

She left the bar, and he seized the till and put the contents into his pocket. Another turned with a revolver on the bar and left the money on her out on the street. She had simply looked in at the bar.

CHRISTMAS RAID.

"They do that kind of thing all over," he said; "seize all the money, take it away with them, smash the doors and do all the material destruction they can."

This sort of persecution has been going on since last Christmas.

They billeted two Black and Tans in his home for seven weeks, and the room they took was a room occupied by this old invalid aunt. She had her nephew in the same room with her because she wanted attention at night. Some men's clothes were found in the aunt's room and a pair of "the auxiliary" slippers were left behind when the Black and Tans took the room.

They occupied it for seven weeks and without paying anything they walked out. The day after they departed this house was raided by Black and Tans, who searched the same room and found in the slippers some ammunition.

They brought this out and got hold of the proprietor and asked him to explain the presence of the ammunition. He said those were not his slippers; that neither he nor his aunt occupied the room for seven weeks. "I don't know who occupied it, but I will ask the barmaid."

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

Andover and Dublin, N. H., Fairs Held Today

By BETTY ALDEN

Two important fairs take place today, one at North Andover Centre and the other at Dublin, N. H. The former, a regular country fair, will be held from 2 until 7 o'clock on the Common, where prominent matrons have charge of the tables loaded with food, fruit, vegetables and "rummage" articles. In the afternoon bagpipers in full dress will enliven the scene with their pipes.

The fair at Dublin is of interest here, as there are quite a number of Bostonians in the Dublin Summer colony. The affair, which is being held on the grounds of the Dublin Lake Club during the afternoon, is for the benefit of the Dublin Lake Club and more than a few members of the committee in charge are well known in Boston society.

The list includes Mrs. Charles J. Aldrich and Miss Pauline Aldrich, whose engagement was recently announced; Mrs. Thomas Handasyd Cabot of Newburyport and her two daughters, Elizabeth and Pauline Cabot, who were bridesmaids at the recent wedding of Miss Mary Bush, whose father is the well-known painter, to Winslow S. Pierce, Jr.; Mrs. Alexander James, Miss Hilda Morrison, Mrs. Wyman Whittemore of Beacon street, Mrs. Otis T. Russell of Berkeley street, Miss Frances Smith, daughter of the painter, Joseph Lindon Smith of 39 Commonwealth avenue, Mrs. William Brooks Cabot of Marlboro street and Mrs. Bowditch of Brookline, wife of the prominent physician.

A dog show is to be an important feature of the fair, where plenty of money and ribbons will be awarded for deserving canines. Today's entertainment will be followed by a Labor Day at 8 o'clock in the evening by Mrs. Jack James, Miss Hinds of 444 Franklin MacVeagh in Dublin.

Costume balls are decidedly in vogue among Summer colonies everywhere, but the North Shore is having the fancy dress affairs in succession. Following fast upon the heels of the elaborate dance given last night at the Hawthorne Inn, Gloucester, for the benefit of Dr. Grenfell's Labrador mission, comes the casino ball tonight at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, which, like Hinds' last evening's affair will help swell the fund for social work among children while at the Boston Floating Hospital and for convalescent children whose welfare is fully considered, even after they are officially discharged from the hospital. Among the chaperones for tonight's affair are Mrs. Spencer Ong of Brookline and Swampscott and Mrs. David C. Percival of Commonwealth avenue and Litchfield, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bird and Mrs. John R. Bird of Boston have joined Mrs. William R. Bird at the Intervale House, in the White Mountains.

Mrs. Charles S. Minot of Marlboro street numbers among the recent arrivals at the Lenox Hotel at Lenox, in the Berkshires.

Mrs. Amos Lawrence Hopkins of Commonwealth avenue has Mrs. Henry Lee Higginson of Beacon and Miss Clarance Cunningham of Boston as guests at her villa in Williamstown.

Countess Rascalla and her daughter of Venice, are the guests of Mrs. Robert Winthrop of Boston at her Somerset home, Elmwynd, in Lenox, Mass. The countess, who was Miss Edith M. Bronson, is an old school friend of Mrs. Robert Winthrop's daughter, Mrs. Herman van Rolien (Albertina Winthrop), who, with Mr. van Rolien, is the ambassador at Rome, is spending a month at "Elmwynd."

Mrs. R. C. Weld has returned to the Beverly Farms colony after visiting with friends at Bar Harbor.

Colonel W. D. Sohier and his sister, Miss E. P. Sohier, are at their place at Northeast Harbor, Me., for the balance of the season.

FOX FILM AT TREMONT TEMPLE

A theatrical event of much more than ordinary interest and importance is the inauguration of the William Fox production, "Over the Hill," which will open at the Tremont Temple Monday night. "Over the Hill" is one of the most remarkable attractions ever produced in this way. The theme of the picture is mother love and the story is based upon the work of Will Carleton, the poet. The action is drawn from an incident which occurred during the boyhood of Carleton, who lived on a farm and knew intimately the characters that have been made immortal upon the screen. To a young writer was entrusted the task of gathering up the threads of Carleton's famous story and weaving them into a substantial fabric for the screen. The success Paul H. Sloane scored in this assignment is apparent from the first moment of the story's unfolding. Harry Millarde, a director of note, has contributed one of the most artistic and effective examples of stage direction ever beheld upon the screen. The central figure in the story, that of a little, self-sacrificing mother, has been made one of the most delightful character studies of the present season. Mary Carr, whose finished interpretation of the leading part is a constant joy.

Two performances will be given each day, at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. The prices for the matinee will range from 50c to $1.10 including war tax, while all evening prices are sealed from 50c to $2.20.

Norumbega Park, the noted playground of New England, is now finishing its most successful 28th season in the history of the park, for in all seasons past the business has never been as great as the present. The abnormal times and great business depression that has been felt throughout the country has not made the slightest difference to the loyal patronage at this great outdoor amusement resort. Business this season has been in many instances 100 per cent. greater than anything in the past. All this success is due to the careful management of Carl Alberte, who seems to understand the tastes of his particular clientele, and is urgent in his efforts to offer each week a theatre show that is in perfect harmony with the ideas of the people who patronize the park. Always making an effort to secure the best feature photoplays that are released, and the price is a secondary consideration.

Mary Young, as well known here that any further reference is an open insult to one's theatre-going experience, will be the headliner at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Miss Young, who since leaving here with "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," created a sensation in New York, and has made a visit to Europe, will be seen in a playlet written especially for her by Frederick and Fanny Hatton. It is called "Fire and Brimstone," and from all reports is a colorful comedy with gives Miss Young fine scope for her talents.

DESTROY WAR OR BE DESTROYED, SAYS BRYCE

Alliance of States, Not a "Super-State," the One Hopeful Way to Peace

By Associated Press.

Williamstown, Aug. 27.—Viscount James Bryce, delivering his final address at the Institute of Politics, declared that "while we are obliged to dismiss the conception of a superstate as outside the range of practical politics" still if th people do not by some means try to destroy war, war will destroy them.

"The old fashioned system of defensive alliances among individual states is open to as many objections as is the concept of the super state, he said.

"Could an alliance be made by a large number of States directed not against other States, but against war itself by providing means of averting them?" Although Lord Bryce avoided answering this question in so many words, his substantial conclusion was that such an alliance wa potentially possible.

"Such a combination of States would begin by developing and stending the scope of the methods of arbitration and conciliation. These two methods may be made to cover every sort of dispute that can arise between States," he said, that for this combination of States "there must be not only a permanent council to hear and decide controversies, but a council of some sort to apply methods of conciliation to disputes not fit for legal determination."

"Any sort of a guarantee of a status as to existing territorial rights of the member nations ought to be accompanied by ample provision for an examination of the causes of discontent and their removal. This may seem a heavy task, but it must be undertaken if a permanent peace, and good will, the foundation of peace, is to be secured.

His body has not been recovered.

Gilchrist was bending over the upper deck railing intently watching a man on the lower deck making a cation of a good-sized fish, when he lost his balance, and toppled over the railings. In falling his head struck on the guard rail of the steamer. His companions believe the blow rendered him insensible, for he failed to appear on the surface after striking the water. He was considered a good swimmer.

Gilchrist was enjoying his day off and had left on the steamer early in the morning for an all day's fishing trip. He was survived by a good-sized catch when the fatality occurred.

He refused to drive to headquarters, so Traffic Roundsman Hall procured the police patrol. The senator put up $5 for his appearance and Hodgers, who was charged with disorderly conduct, put up $10. The procedure is in compliance with the provisions of section 4 of chapter 358 of the acts of 1893, which permits the head of a diocese to administer and own property in his charge as a corporation.

Arrest B. & A. Fireman on Charge of Mann Act Violation

Springfield, Aug. 27.—Leon J. Clapp, twenty-four years of age, No. 25 Irving street, West Springfield, is under arrest on charges of violating the Mann act. He was released under $500 bail for a hearing September 3 before United States Commissioner John L. Rice.

Last May Clapp, who is married and a Boston & Albany fireman, eloped with Mildred Bullis, seventeen years old, of West Springfield. They were caught in Indiana.

CROSSED IN LOVE MAINE GIRL, 17, TAKES POISON

Waterville Miss, Forced to Give Up Sweetheart, Tries to End Life

Waterville, Me., Aug. 27.—Because her stepfather had forbidden her ever to see her sweetheart again, Helen Gunning, seventeen years old, walked down Love Lane, on the banks of Messalonski stream, and swallowing poison, dropped unconscious within a stone's throw of the spot where she parted a few hours previous from Steven Dalsi, the man to whom her parents objected.

A note beside her read: "I love you, Steve. No one can part us, only death."

The girl was almost dead when found.

She was rushed to the Waterville hospital, where slim hope is held out for her recovery.

The girl, one of the most attractive young women of this town, was well known. She had been keeping company with Dalsi for several months, unknown to her stepfather.

He learned of the friendship last night. When Helen returned home he forbade her ever to see Dalsi again. Broken-hearted the girl went to her room. Later when other members of the household were asleep she crept down stairs and with a bottle of bichloride of mercury tablets in her hand walked over the route Dalsi had taken immediately earlier in the evening.

The empty bottle and the pathetic love note were found beside her body.

POLICE SEEK YOUNG ELOPERS OF WEBSTER

Webster, Aug. 27.—Police officials today are endeavoring to locate Leon Baker, nineteen years old, and Miss Hazel Mathieu, fifteen years old, who they charge, eloped to Springfield. After learning that city, the police claim, Baker wired for Annie Smith of the same town to join him there. Instructions are annually attractive to the public, either in telecraphing for Miss Smith puzzled the police.

FRAMEWORK OF ZR-2 BROUGHT TO SURFACE

Bodies of Loftin, American, and Rye, Englishman, Recovered

By Universal Service.

Hull, Aug. 27.—From the mass of twisted girders, gondolas and torn sheets of silver envelope which is all that is left of the air dreadnought ZR-2, two bodies, one of an American, were recovered by means of a huge crane. The American was Chief Machinist's Mate Albert L. Loftin. He was identified by Lieutenant Taylor, an American medical officer at Howden. The Englishman was Sergeant Rye. A dredger brought the bodies ashore.

After dragging the bottom for hours the crane caught the huge mass of the framework and hauled it to the surface. The first thing seen was Loftin's foot. Then the rest of the body appeared stiffed in brown overalls.

When the wreck was hauled into midale Rye's body was seen in a sitting position amid the tangled mass of framework. Rye's face was covered with blood. Otherwise there was no sign of injuries.

"Loftin looks as if he had suffered a terrific sunburn," remarked Lieutenant Taylor, "as if he had been sitting on the bench at Atlantic City or a hot day. Otherwise there are no marks on his body. He was recovered from midships. There is renewed hope now that more bodies will be picked up."

A third body was revealed by the crane, but it slipped from the parachute chain to which it had been tied into the water and disappeared.

It was an impressive scene when the bodies which have been landed were placed in the wooden coffins lying on the docks and carried to waiting ambulances through the silent bareheaded crowd.

At the inquest formal evidence was taken of the identification of the bodies of Lieutenant Marcus H. Ray, R. N. Reserve, and S. Naval Reserve force; Lieutenant Charles E. Little, also of the U. S. Naval Reserve force, and Mr. S. Montagu, a British member of the Zeppelin staff while their inquest was held. The court of inquiry adjourned to October 3.

VESSEL FLOATED AFTER 10 HOURS ON SHOALS

The Savannah Line steamship City of Atlanta, inland bound with passengers and freight, which went aground below Castle Island, in Boston Harbor, was floated at flood tide ten hours after she had stuck on the shoals.

The fifty-two members of the crew remained aboard. The sea was smooth when she went aground and the vessel has sustained no apparent damage.

Changes Made in the Cast of "The O'Brien Girl" Have Not Marred Play

By FRED J. McISAAC.

The drawing powers of "The O'Brien Girl," despite internal conditions which would have wrecked any other organization, are utterly astounding.

Night after night the standing room only sign goes up. The audiences are fully as enthusiastic as they were the opening night. Some of the people have seen it several times. There never was such a success—not even Mary.

And yet behind the footlights there never was a company so disrupted, so torn by intrigue, so shaken by dissensions. One principal after another has disappeared from the cast, the whole chorus has gone bit by bit to be replaced by a new one. Around the lobby you will see some of the ex-principals looking disconsolate.

George Cohan himself is usually somewhere about, good natured but determined, making his fight all alone for the open shop. The squabbles behind the scenes are believed to be largely responsible for the death of James Gorman, the veteran stage manager. Cohan believes it, and with the generosity so typical of him, has ordered that Gorman's family continue to receive his salary indefinitely.

Jake Rosenthal, the company manager is continually in the mental attitude of Foch at the Battle of the Marne and two or three schemes to fix "The O'Brien Girl" so that a performance could not be given have been foiled by his alertness.

The popularity of Cohan is unbounded. When he shows himself before the curtain occasionally, the audience brings down the roof. Quite apart from any union sentiment, it is obvious that George M. is the possessor of the complete sympathy of the audiences which pack the Tremont, and the Equity must understand it by this time.

And most remarkable testimony to Cohan's skill as a producer, and the great gifts of Theodore Mitchell as a stage director, such principals as Marlowe, Fritzi Scheff and Stanley Forde have been replaced without a ripple, and the Equity chorus has given place to one which just wants work with a smoothness which is amazing.

Tries It On the Boss.

Hale Hamilton who is co-star with Grace LaRue in "Dear Me," the John Golden comedy with songs which is opening the new season of the Hollis Street Theatre, is one of the leading comedians of essentially American method. In fact after making a distinct hit as the original "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," he went with the comedy to London and repeated his success over there. He has said that one of the surprises in store for him was the fact that the American jokes went equally well without alteration before the English audiences.

With his comedy, "Dear Me," which Mr. Hamilton wrote in collaboration with Luther Reed, he has made a strong impression as a playwright. He has done another play which Mr. Golden will shortly produce in New York. It is called "Happy New Year," and it was written in collaboration with Viola Brothers Shore, the well-known short story writer. Its sale to John Golden by Hamilton is a good story in itself.

During the last presidential convention in Chicago Golden was on a visit there, and Hamilton invited him to his room at the Sherman Hotel, ostensibly to discuss some changes in "Dear Me," then running at the Cort Theatre. Much to Golden's surprise Hamilton locked the door on him and read all the new play. Golden bought it before he left the room, remarking, "I see, Hale, you have benefited by prior experience in playing 'Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford.'"

The Fokine Ballet.

The great outstanding feature of "Mecca," which Morris Gest will bring to Boston early in September, is the marvelous Fokine Ballet, which set New York raving last season.

As everybody should know, Michael Fokine invented the Russian Ballet and had much to do with the present decrase for dancing. There is no such great genius in the world as Fokine when it comes to conceiving subjects for ballets or the working out thereof, and his skill at costuming and lighting effects is superhuman. The only really distinguishing feature of "Aphrodite" was the Fokine ballet in the banquet scene, but in "Mecca" he has so far surpassed this ballet that it is relegated to insignificance. The "Mecca" ballet takes place upon a huge flight of stairs, and it comes close to being the most beautiful thing ever seen upon a stage in the garments of pale blue light, and little more.

"Mecca," while quite as spectacular, is by no means as dreary to the ordinary theatre goer as "Aphrodite." There is plenty of action, and one stunningly spectacular scene succeeds another.

This production comes here with the original cast intact, a very important matter. Last season Gest was unable to persuade Dorothy Dalton to continue as Aphrodite until Boston was reached, and the loss of this remarkable personality had much to do with the failure of that huge spectacle to go over.

Started at Boston Museum.

A good actor can usually manage to impress himself, no matter how insignificant his part, and Charles Abbe, as the butler in "A Wise Child," was being applauded at every entrance and exit he made. It appeared that the butler was really an important role.

Abbe was the original Cappy Ricks in the dramatization of the Peter B. Kyne novel which ran at the Plymouth Theatre three weeks before going to New York. He had to give up the part before the production reached Broadway, but in the recent filming of the piece, which took place right here in Boston Harbor, he resumed his old role, while Thomas Meighan appeared as Peter Pressley.

It was on the stage of the old Boston Museum that Abbe made his first appearance as a super. William Ingersoll, also in "A Wise Child" company, was a fellow super. In 1909 the two met in a Pittsburgh stock company when Abbe was chief comedian and Ingersoll leading man. This Boston engagement is their third collision.

'DEAR ME' AT HOLLIS ST.

"Dear Me," a comedy with songs co-starring Grace LaRue and Hale Hamilton, will open the new season of the Hollis Street Theatre Monday night. Producer John Golden promises the original cast intact, and the play which was staged under the personal direction of Winchell Smith will be seen exactly as it ran last season for six months at the Republic Theatre, New York, and five months at the Cort Theatre, Chicago.

The magnetic personalities of Miss LaRue and Mr. Hamilton hold full away in "Dear Me." That it fits them so well is quite natural because Mr. Hamilton wrote the play himself in collaboration with Luther Reed. Incidentally, it gives Miss LaRue her first opportunity in a straight acting role.

Mr. Hamilton is best remembered for his portrayal of the deft, resourceful J. Rufus Wallingford in George M. Cohan's get-rich-quick comedy of that name.

The story of the play deals with happenings in the Amos Prentice Home for Artistic and Literary Failures where April Blair (Miss LaRue) is a slavey. The first of its three acts shows the interior of the home and the others are cross-sections of studio and theatrical life in New York. Among the supporting players are J. K. Hitchinson, George N. Price, Mart E. Heisey, Luis Alberni, Camilla Crume, James C. Horton, Max Frick, Robert Lowe, Baker Moore, Elva Nelson and William Conway.

Catch Them Young

Mitzi, who comes to the Tremont Labor Day in "Lady Billy," has been an actress since the age of four. Her first applause came from neighborly "audiences" who watched her from their lawns or parlor windows, and delighted to see such a little girl remember such long pieces or songs.

When she was eight, Mitzi began to write plays for the "performances" given at her boarding school. She organized a pretentious dramatic company among her classmates, and at nine appointed herself "director" of the gathering. When she saw Genee dance, Mitzi decided to abandon acting and become a dancer. Among 120 applicants, she was selected to enter the National Academy of Dancing in St. Petersburg, but homesickness overcame the very young dancewise—and she never matriculated.

Mitzi completed a seven-year musical course in only two years at one of the largest musical art institutes in Europe. Her public musical debut was made at the age of eleven, when she gave a series of performances. Her impersonations attracted so much attention that she was offered a scholarship at the Academy of Dramatic Art in Budapest. When she was sixteen Mitzi came to America and won her first following in "Sari." She has since appeared with success in "Pom Pom" and in "Head Over Heels."

BIG PARK TO SHUT UP SOON

A free out-of-door cabaret show, with a musical program furnished by Al Moore's Naval Band and Lambert Brothers' crack dancing orchestra combined, will be one of the features that Paragon Park will present at Nantasket next week—the final days of the 1921 season. All sorts of other features, chief among which will be special fireworks displays that will rival anything ever presented in New England, are scheduled by the Paragon management to make sure that the closing days of the season will be remarkable ones in Paragon's history.

On Monday the Paragon management is to provide the amusement at the big outing of 600 wounded veterans of the World War, which is to be held at Rainford Island. Moore's Band, Lambert's Orchestra and all of Healy Cronen's Paragon Park revue from the Palm Gardens have been donated by President Albert A. Golden and Treasurer David Stone of the Paragon Park Company to go to the island and entertain the maimed veterans.

The New Stock Company

The daring enterprise of George Giles in turning the St. James Theatre, long a picture and vaudeville house, into the home of a first class stock company deserves applause. There are far too many picture and vaudeville houses and not nearly enough good stock companies.

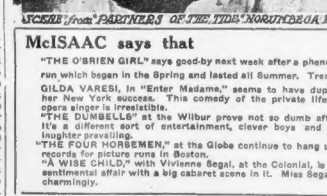
Very likely one of the reasons for the decline and fall of stock was the sort of barn in which stock companies were relegated to. It happens that the St. James is an unusually comfortable and beautiful house located opposite Symphony Hall and admirably suited both in front and back of the scenes for legitimate performances.

Of course the acting will make or break a stock company, and a bad troupe under the best conditions will rapidly fail. The St. James management has worked hard to assemble a good company and we shall have a chance to see how it has succeeded next week.

There is no doubt that a competent director has been found in William C. Masson. He dates from the halcyon days of the Castle Square, which was at one time the best stock company in America.

In glancing over the roster we find Leona Powers, a former favorite of Malden; Viola Roach, by far the best actress of the defunct Jewett Players; Aubrey Bosworth; Mark Kent, an old Castle Square star; Walter Gilbert, Florence Roberts and other who are capable of good work. And the policy of offering recent New York hits instead of musty stock stand-bys deserves applause.

The musical public has never found the Massachusetts and Huntington avenue district out of the way, and the St. James will draw well if the performances justify support.



McISAAC says that

"THE O'BRIEN GIRL" says good-by next week after a phenomenal run which began in the Spring and lasted all Summer. Tremont.

GILDA VARESI, in "Enter Madame," seems to have duplicated her New York success. This comedy of the private life of an opera singer is irresistible.

"THE DUMBELLS" at the Wilbur prove not so dumb after all. It's a different sort of entertainment, clever boys and merry laughter prevailing.

"THE FOUR HORSEMEN," at the Globe continue to hang up new records for picture runs in Boston.

"A WISE CHILD," with Vivienne Segal, at the Colonial, is a very sentimental affair with a big cabaret scene in it. Miss Segal sings charmingly.

ST. JAMES STOCK NOW

The new stock company has chosen Cosmo Hamilton's "Scandal" as the opening bill at the St. James next week. This piece played the Plymouth last season.

It is a masterpiece of polite comedy and draws a daring picture of a society girl. Beatrix chafes against the restraints of too much convention in the home and yearns for a trip into Bohemia. She is found by her family visiting an artist in his studio, and she escapes her difficulty by claiming to have secretly married another artist who opportunely enters.

To punish her for her audacity and impudence the pretended husband undertakes to claim the rights of matrimony, much to the dismay of the new paramount beauty. Exciting and fascinating complications ensue.

The Boston Stock Company, as the St. James tenants call themselves, include a number of well-known people. Leona Powers plays the heroine and Walter Gilbert the hero. Viola Roach is the leading character woman. Mark Kent the heavy, and Jean Milholland, Harold Chase, Ralph Remley and Harold Chase, Ralph Remley and Frank Charleton are in the company.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ.

"The Oath," the R. A. Walsh production for Associated First National Pictures, Inc., which opens at Gordon's Central Square, Cambridge, on Monday, for a three-days' showing, contains a scene which has been hailed by critics as being the most dramatic that has ever been filmed or staged. A series of fast moving, interesting circumstances has involved Hugh Colman in a situation where his conviction for murder is absolutely certain unless he breaks an oath given to his wife when he secretly married.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

The opening of the new dramatic season of the Somerville Players will take place on Labor Day matinee. The company for this season will include many new faces. Most important of all is the engagement of Enid Markey, famous stage and screen star, who will head this reputable aggregation of players. Miss Markey's advent to Somerville will unquestionably prove one of the most auspicious features of the new season.

GORDON'S STRAND

The popularity of the automobile race Paramount pictures, in which Wallace Reid has starred, has resulted in the screening of "Too Much Speed," another original Byron Morgan story, with the racetrack as a background.

GAYETY THEATRE

"Murtig's Big Wonder Show," a splendid musical extravaganza which presents the latest novelties in theatrical entertainment, will inaugurate the new burlesque season at the Gayety Theatre, Washington street, on Labor Day.

MITZI IN "LADY BILLY"

Theatregoers who like the brightest and most original in a musical entertainment will be delighted at the announcement of Henry W. Savage's presentation of Mitzi in "Lady Billy" at the Tremont Theatre beginning Monday, September 5th, for she has this season the hit of her career, this musical romance having won popular approval for over 300 performances at the Liberty Theatre, New York, last season.

EXTRA!! SPECIAL!!
TO THE THEATREGOERS OF BOSTON:

Once in a great while an event happens of such supreme and transcendent importance that it stands out as a mile-stone in the path of human progress. Such an event is about to occur in Boston. The artistic geniuses of modern times have gathered together, and they have combined to form an unparalleled production of unparalleled and sensational beauty.

This production is the spectacular staging of a romance of the ancient days of Egypt in full glory. It is "MECCA," and will be presented by Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, who have already exhibited in Boston their previous supers-pecials, "The Chu Chin Chow" was written by Oscar Asche, the celebrated creator of "Chu Chin Chow," who is now forever engaged in preparing the English production of this beautiful musical extravaganza to be revealed in Lindsay Morrison's Theatre, London, in a few weeks.

The score of "MECCA," by Percy E. Fletcher, is replete with tuneful and haunting musical gems, while that immortal Michael Fokine, creator of the Russian ballet, has devised and staged the most marvellous ballet that has perhaps been witnessed in the modern theatre.

The costumes are by Percy Anderson of London and Leon Baket of Paris; the scenery, of great exotic beauty, was painted by the famous Harry Brehers Brothers of London, and E. Lyall Swete, who put on "Chu Chin Chow" in London, has staged the production.

"MECCA" is easily the culminating triumph of stage productions today. It was produced in extravagant times at an enormous outlay of money, and despite the fact that Messrs. Comstock and Gest are sending this gorgeous spectacle to Boston intact without cutting down its numerical strength or substituting inferior people for well-known and leading players who were so prominently identified with its sensational success at the Century Theatre, New York, last season.

BACK TO EARTH

will be the policy with respect to prices during this engagement.

Where "MECCA" commanded $3.50 and $4.00 per seat last winter in New York, the highest prices for evening performances, including Saturday, during its TWO WEEKS' engagement at the BOSTON OPERA HOUSE, beginning MONDAY, SEPT. 12TH, will be $2.50, while there will be no seat higher than $1.50 at the Wednesday matinees, and $1.00 at the Saturday matinee. HUSBAND WANTS WIFE HELD IN WHITE SLAVE CASE BACK AGAIN

AWAY WITH FISH! These poor fishes (referring to the finny tribe) were caught by the dashing young marines off the naval base, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Catching fish like this is no job for a lounge lizard—it's a "he" size undertaking—characteristic of the marines.

LIFE'S AMBITION! Charles R. Moberly has been commissioned by Congress to complete the paintings of the famous artist, Brumidi, in the House end of the Capitol. He is here shown using the same brushes as the Italian master. Conceived ambition 50 years ago. (W. W.)

ROYALTY SWABS DECKS! Comte de Srieck, 18, Belgian nobleman, wants his country to have a wonder navy, so he "went to sea." Shown on Persier, now at Philadelphia. Has 4 years to serve before he can be first mate. (U. & U.)

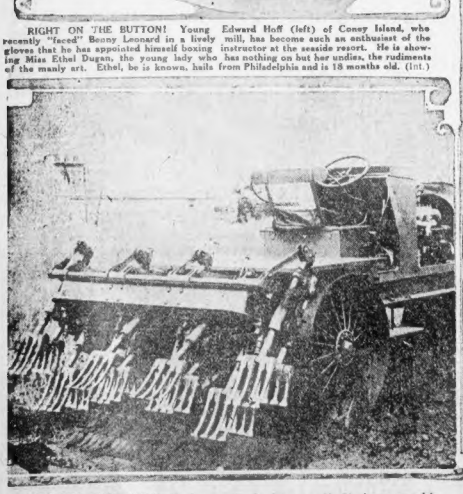
GILDED BUGS! Golden beetles worn as an ornament to milady's new chapeau is the latest fad among the smart set of England. The bugs are cleaned and later gilded into a novel piece of "jewelry." Real beetles are used for the purpose. Diagram shows how hat looks with decoration. (W. W.)

PAYS TO ADVERTISE! This is not only true of the newspaper, but of ships as well. The S. S. St. Louis will sail in a few months on a sales promotion trip around the world, carrying products of 300 American manufacturers into 50 foreign ports. Exhibit space on ship will be enormous. (Int.)

FARES, PLEASE! Ed Kohler, richest conductor in world, paid income tax of $12,000 this year. Works on Pacific Electric Road and lives in Los Angeles. No, Oscar, Ed didn't make his fortune on the road. It was left to him. Anyway, they use cash registers out there. (K.)

SLIM Jim Barnes of Pelham, as the experts predicted, came in for a large share of honors yesterday on the opening day of the national open golf championship at Cleveland. His stroking was perfect. (Int.)

GIDDAP, WHEELBARROWS! When flirting becomes monotonous, and the limpid waters of Nantasket fail to lure the sea nymph, "us girls" must do something to chase away gloom. The wheelbarrow race is now one of the most popular sports at the resort. These Paragon girlies are set to Barney Oldfield up the beach. Classiest speedbarrows at Nantasket.



RIGHT ON THE BUTTON! Young Edward Hoff (left) of Coney Island, who recently "faced" Benny Leonard in a lively mill, has become such an enthusiast of the gloves that he has appointed himself boxing instructor at the seaside resort. He is showing Miss Ethel Dugan, the young lady who has nothing on but her undies, the rudiments of the manly art. Ethel, be is known, hails from Philadelphia and is 18 months old. (Int.)

FARMING MADE EASY! No longer will the farmer or his hired man complain of a lame back and sweltering days in the sun, for with the invention of this spading tractor 80 per cent. of this sort of labor has been eliminated. It will spade up 3 acres an hour and performs this work more uniformly than a laborer can by hand. (Int.)

Fresh From Paris

Paris, France.

WHILE the full length skirt for evening has been accepted by Paris, it is perhaps most frequently seen as a tunic over a shorter underskirt. The slender, youthful dinner frock at the left shows this mode to charming effect. The plain, long-waisted bodice and underskirt are of silver tissue. The overtunic is of black Chantilly lace. Typically Parisian are the flame and silver roses which girdle the frock and edge the lace tunic.

A CONTRAST to the full, straight skirt at the left is afforded by the full sharply draped frock of flame velvet, with its frill of silver lace and extreme decolletage. But Paris smiles just as approvingly on this sophisticated silhouette as it does on the demure outline of the youthful dinner frock.

ALARMISTS IN HIGH PLACES DENOUNCED BY HAPGOOD

Washington, Aug. 27.—All my life I have been compelled to listen to talk about the inaccuracy of newspapers. Meantime, I have been underfed with talk about the inaccuracy of pillars of society and people in high station. Today I want to turn the tables and discuss two performances that indicate the seriousness with which our rulers face that awful goddess known as Truth.

It is a time of short memories, but some will recall the giving out of the pirate ship story. Not enough had been said about the Bolsheviks in the last three and a half years, so a story was given out in Washington, and printed in every quarter of the land, hinting that a ship manned by Bolshevik pirates was roaming the seas, capturing and sinking innocent merchantmen.

The evidence for this interpretation of the disappearance of two or three ships, rapidly multiplied into many times that number, was enough to make a serious person cry. The principal bit into which the official Sherlocks got their teeth was a letter sent by mail, which the sender alleged he found in a bottle washed up on the shore from a ship victimized by said pirates.

HOAX EXPLODED.

Well, this tenth-rate bit of propaganda is now exploded. The feeble perpetrator of the hoax has been discovered. The discovery of this gentleman was a good piece of work, and is thereby praised. I trust ask at the same time, however, whether this is or is not a fair way of showing impressions in the minds of a hundred and ten million brilliant Americans about one of the hardest problems in the world.

Don't all answer at once. Let us now pass on to another contemporary example of how our rulers, so much superior to mere journalists, sometimes deal with the infinitely difficult matter of credit. The following quotation is from the Congressional Record:

"Mr. President, I am not advised as to whether or not any of the friends of the Federal Reserve Board were speculating in cotton at that time. The Senator from Georgia reminded us the other day that they loaned to themselves in the system the sum of $18,000,000. I want to say just here, Mr. President, that if they invested any part of that $18,000,000 in speculating on the rear side of the cotton market in the month of August, last year, they made a lot of money."

CHALLENGES HEFLIN.

The speaker is J. Thomas Heflin. He is a senator, in other words, a member of the United States Senate. I wish to deal with him a little roughly. The paragraph I have quoted is on all fours with the pirate ship. The only difference is that in the one case the public was to be stirred up against the Bolsheviks and in the other case it was to be stirred up against the Federal Reserve Board. The respect for evidence was the same in both cases.

I challenge Senator Heflin to give any meaning whatever to the statement he quotes from the Senator from Georgia. If he can in any possible way tell what he is talking about, then he might go on and discuss the question of whether any such $18,000,000 loan was made.

Then challenge him to give the slightest trace of evidence that any present member of the Federal Reserve Board has been speculating in cotton, or in anything else. If he has, he should be removed. If he has not, Senator Heflin should be removed.

The board cannot protect itself from these cheap innuendoes. To volunteer answers to sensation-mongers in high places would not increase its dignity. So it has to sit still and listen to the loose defamation that if it were carried on in a newspaper would fill our solons with superior contempt.

AN EXAMPLE.

What would Senator Heflin think if I printed something like this:

"I do not know whether or not Senator Heflin, who has every opportunity, as a Senator, of standing in with the money powers, and forcing them to give him tips, did or did not go down to Wall street last April, in the first week of the month, and hold up three of the best known bankers of New York.

"I want to say just here, however, that if Senator Heflin has been carrying on that sort of persuasion the amount of money he has made, Mr. President, must have been considerable."

My publication would be inexcusable, outrageous, and perhaps dangerous. Can the Senator distinguish it from the charge he has hinted against the members of the Reserve Board?

PEERLESS CAR 'PICK-UP' IS REVELATION

Unique Make of Carburetor Responsible for Great Burst of Speed

The wonderful "pick-up" of the Peerless car has been often commented on and probably the ordinary layman has little conception of just what occurs when the motor is opened up for that burst of speed from forty-five miles per hour up.

The writer was examining the type of carburetor the other day and J. L. Snow, the Peerless distributor, explained how it functioned. The carburetor on the Peerless car is rather unique in that it employs two sets of spray nozzles with the corresponding auxiliary air valves, two nozzles and two air valves in each set.

Under ordinary working conditions the main set of nozzles is called into play and this gives you a good working mixture for speed up to about 45 miles. When the accelerator pedal or throttle is opened further the other two nozzles and valves are called into action and then you get that fascinating "hum" of the motor which denotes a world of latent power just ready to be let loose.

The carburetor, as Mr. Snow explained, is practically automatic after the first air adjustment has been made, and by employing this double set of valves it is possible to get a better working mixture, and also one for extreme speed. Every motorist knows the difficulty of assessing a carburetor for low and high speed work, and this method solves the trouble and makes a more economical car.

The way the Peerless gets away when you shove the accelerator pedal way down to the floorboard is a revelation to one who drives it for the first time.

CHALMERS GIVES AN EXCELLENT PERFORMANCE

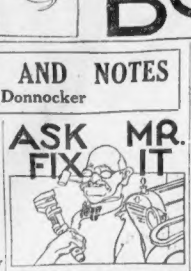
New Models Make a Fine Impression on Motorists Seeking Consistency

"This was Chalmers demonstration week all over the country," said C. E. Fay, local Maxwell and Chalmers distributor, yesterday, "and Boston was right in line. Ordinarily this time of year is supposed to be a slack season, with vacations and week-end trips coming all the time, but it was surprising to see the number of people who were actually interested in seeing just what this new Chalmers would do.

"The performance of the Chalmers car under all conditions exacted by the most careful buyers has been most gratifying to us all, and forecasts a good, honest business for the Fall.

"There are always people who are interested in motor cars and now more than ever, the buyer wants to 'show me' what a car will do. While paint and upholstery help in sales, a car must perform consistently to make an impression on the motor car buyer today, and the Chalmers car will do that."

ASK MR. FIX IT



*Dear Mr. Fix-It—*Having seen how often your information has helped other motorists, I decided to see if you can help me in my troubles.

First—I have a rivet in the hub of my rear wheel. Thought it might be a cracked hub but all are solid. What is apt to be the trouble?

Second—When mechanics refer to piston clearance does it mean that the specified clearance should be on all sides of the piston or does it mean that the number of thousandths is the entire clearance? For instance if a piston is specified as .004 clearance does that mean .004 on each side or .002 on each side?

Third—Sometimes, after I have driven about fifteen or ten miles after I stop, my motor throws out a heavy explosion in the muffler. What is the cause and remedy?

Fourth—What is the best way of cleaning the water jacket? I mean, of material rust, etc., that is too heavy for a liquid solution to move. At one time I used considerable radiator repair patents that are put into the water and I think a great deal of it is lodged around through the jacket.

Fifth—I have trouble covering my universal joints from throwing out the grease. Have tried several makes of boots, but they dropped a little toward the rear end, thus causing wear on any packing that should be used. There is no packing on these joints. Is it necessary and if so what kind?

Thanking you in advance I await your reply.

—A. F. S., Quincy, Mass.

First—This may come from a loose spoke. Although a narrow wheel is supposed never to become loose, sometimes the spokes loosen up which causes the rivet to work. Tighten the spokes around it if the rivet fits and the spokes themselves were sufficiently you might hear the balls when the wheel turns. Keep loose grease in and you may lose the latter trouble.

Second—The piston clearance refers to the clearance on each side, that is .004 means .004 all the way around the piston.

Third—The muffler needs cleaning. Your motor probably is missing more in a while, or if you shut it off you still have the throttle open, which allows the charge of gas to pass through the motor to the muffler where it is ignited by the heat of the muffler and the gas has become heated to an inconvenient state. Clean out your muffler and this will stop.

Fourth—One of the best solutions to use to clean out water jackets and radiators is a tablespoonful of baking soda to a quart of water. Use two or three gallons of water and let your motor pump it around and open your pet-cocks and see if the water does not come out clear. If the rust has been washed through and the motor has water plugs, then the water will come out clear. Do not put any acid on the inside. This is not possible unless the water plugs are a good size. Flush out the motor with the solution we have given you and you have done all that you can do.

Fifth—The Spicer is known as a ball and socket joint. We know of no way of taking up the wear on these joints and there is no packing. It is the case of buying new joints.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Please tell the best way and to get on a Flanders 20 to make the most mile to use, also the year it was built.

—H. Hamilton, Lynn, Mass.

There is no rear end manufactured adaptable to this construction and if there were the price would be more than your car is worth.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have a new 19 model Buick. Have driven 810 miles at less than twenty miles per hour so decided to break it in. Now when I try over twenty and around twenty-five miles per hour the machine develops a high humming sound—don't know if on climbing hills that there is a sounds strong. What can I do to prevent that racing hum? Am about to take it out from and will it stop as the car is driven faster? Thanking you for any help in Mr. Hamilton.

You get this hum at certain speeds which shows that the rear end is noisy. Usually it does not last it coming up a hill as the motor is pulling evenly at that time and there is a pull against it. You had better take your car to a good Buick Service Station. We believe there is one at Lawrence.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—I have an 1920-600 Chevrolet and the steering knuckle has broken twice in three months. Is there all on one side? Could you tell me what is causing it? Hoping to hear from you I remain, A. S., Woodsocket, R. I.

You probably mean the plain arm breaks. The break in this arm is due to crystallization. The best remedy is to replace with a taper one into which this plain arm fits. There is a firm in Providence, Grand Garage, Dorrance street, that does this very well. Take your car to the Chevrolet Service Station and they can fix it up for you.

Dear Mr. Fix-It—Will you please kindly inform me if there is a way to stop the hum in a Ford car or the gear of a Hupp? Thanking you, I understand that ground cork mixed with the oil will stop it.—M. J., Methuen, Mass.

In the old days we used ground cork mixed with grease to stop various noises, and also a grease made of graphite and sawdust which was on the market. You might try the cork and grease. If your case your gears are worn so that there is no other way to stop the noise. Any gears on a car which has been in use for a year or more are apt to be noisy, although the helical gears which generally used today are more quiet than the type you have.

FITZSIMMONS WILL BANK ON LEFT-HAND WALLOP TO BEAT MITCHELL

By JACK CONWAY.

Eddie Fitzsimmons will rely upon body blows to give him a victory over Pinky Mitchell in their ten round bout at the Arena A. C.'s show next Monday night. This is very natural as the New Yorker is a southpaw. And if there is one form of attack the portsiders seem to favor it is lefties to body.

Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, relies almost entirely upon punches to the body to take the fighting spirit out of his opponents.

Johnny Wilson, world's champion, is another southpaw who believes that body smashes are the most effective. Wilson did wonderful execution to the body with his left hand in his New York tussle with Mike O'Dowd.

* * *

When Fitzsimmons fought Charley White at the Grand Opera House a few years ago, he battered the Chicago man around the body until the latter was groggy. A left hook to the jaw then all but finished White.

Fitzsimmons will have his troubles in scoring to Mitchell's body as the Milwaukee youth is a fast, clever boxer who keeps moving around the ring at a terrific pace. His fifteen round draw with Willie Jackson in New York and his wins over Lew Tendler and Johnny Dundee attest this fact.

* * *

Down at New Bedford Frankie (Young) Britt is busy training for his ten-round bout with Young Gradwell, which will be the semi-final to the Mitchell-Fitzsimmons affair. Britt expects to win, in which event he will be prepared to battle the so-called "big guns" in the lightweight class. The Arena A. C.'s downtown office, Room 12, No. 24 school street, reports a heavy demand for reservations.

* * *

There will be 15,000 persons on hand when Nate Siegal and Eddie Shevlin clash at the Revere Cycle track next Thursday night, according to present indications.

This match has been hanging fire for a year and everybody interested in the grand old game of swat is eager to see how these old rivals shape up. The fact that Siegal and Shevlin have already engaged in a couple of sensational battles adds interest to the tussle. When this pair first met, honors were even after ten furious rounds of milling. Shevlin won the second start after a hard fight.

* * *

Siegal's supporters have come to the front in large numbers during the past few days. The way things are looking now Shevlin will only be a slight favorite at post time. Nate's gruelling battle against Paul Doyle and his win over Mike Morley have helped his pugilistic stock a whole lot. Then, too, the Siegal backers are elated over the fact that the Revere boy is training at Martin Flaherty's camp at Lowell.

Flaherty is on old hand in the fight game and will see that Nate is in the best of condition when he enters the ring next Thursday night. Siegal says he will be in as good condition at ring time as he was when he battled Young Kisby on Columbus Day. This means that Shevlin will have the battle of his young life.

* * *

Tom Goodwin, who is assisting the active Post of the Spanish War Veterans in promoting this show, announced that reservations may be secured tonight at the Revere Cycle Track and at any time at the organization's Boston office at Room H, No. 39 Court street.

* * *

Charley Frasca informed us today that Harry Silva, West End welterweight, is ready for action once more. Silva has had a good rest and believes he is fit to take on all comers.

The Commercial A. C. will stage its next show at Mechanics building on September 9. Matchmaker Joe McCarthy already has his lines out for several attractive matches.

* * *

Matchmaker Alec McLean of the Armory Club is also busy arranging a program for the next show of his club. If some of our other local clubs had adopted the plan of the Triple A of refusing to give exorbitant guarantees to a lot of very ordinary fighters, promoters would not now be having so much trouble booking shows that will draw.

JAPS FAVORED TO TAKE LEAD IN NET PLAY

Australians in Final Matches of the Davis Cup Play-off

Newport, R. I., Aug. 27.—Australia's hard-smashing tennis stars were scheduled to face the Japanese at the Casino here today in the final matches of the Davis Cup ties to determine which shall tackle the Americans in the challenge round.

The odds were in favor of the little yellow men of Nippon, who have won two of the three matches played, but supporters of the Antipodeans were hopeful that big Jim Anderson and Jack Hawkes or Clarence Todd might pull the victory out of the fire.

Hawkes' ability to go through with his match against Shimidzu was a question this morning. The burns on his racquet arm from accidental collision with a hot steam pipe were decidedly painful.

Anderson, according to his admirers, would be "cock o' the walk" to Kumagae in the singles had he been on his game and they are banking on him to even up the score against the hard-plugging Japs and thus leave it to whoever opposes Shimidzu to fight it out for the odd victory in five.

BROWN FOOTBALL MEN HAVE IDEAL QUARTERS

Providence, R. I., Aug. 27.—Brown University has issued a call to her 1921 football squad, young hopefuls as well as seasoned veterans, to report for practice on September 12 at the new Brown preliminary training camp at the American Legion Country Club, Lapham, R. I., on Bees breezes, a location on Narragansett Bay and ocean bathing are the features of this camp, used for many years as a training ground for the State militia and now turned over to the gridiron warriors for their initial practice. Head Coach E. N. Robinson, '96, will head an all Brown coaching staff. M. S. Cronin, '97, will be in charge of the backfield; E. J. Slaff, '15, will give particular attention to the line; L. E. Swain, '03, will take care of the ends and W. H. Snell, '13, will have the responsibility of the "skull work." Trainer T. H. Huggins will officiate, as usual.

NOTRE DAME ABANDONS SECRET PRACTICE

Notre Dame, Ind., Aug. 27.—"Secret practice deadens college spirit and every student of Notre Dame is going to be welcome at every practice of the football team that represents him this Fall," declared Coach Knute K. Rockne today, in the course of a discussion of prospects for his 1921 machine.

"Although we are for the whole student body at Notre Dame and with pine knot of every ten students engaged on some campus team each season every man is welcome to closely follow the varsity squad if he does not care to join it," added the coach. "After all, the amount of tricks introduced in the course of a season is small, and our students are welcome to a knowledge of our seasonal repertoire."

READVILLE HAS BIG LIST FOR GRAND CIRCUIT

The directors of the Readville Grand Circuit meeting have completed plans for the racing classic of the East, Monday to Thursday, inclusive, and are highly enthusiastic over the banner entry received for the late closing events.

Never before, since the gates of the famed two-minute track at Readville were first opened, has the number of closely matched and even rated trotters and pacers, for the closing purses, been as large, and some very speedy drawn heats are an absolute certainty.

Peter Manning, 2:08¼, the champion five-year-old trotting gelding, will try on Tuesday to break the record of the track for trotting geldings, now held by Uhlan 1:58, who stepped in 2:03½, in 1909, when he defeated Hamburg Belle 2:01¾.

* * *

It appears certain that when day and track are right, Peter Manning will shade two minutes before the present season is over, while many believe that before the whirlwind gelding closes his turf career he will either equal or beat Uhlan's record.

* * *

In considering Peter Manning's 2:08¼ mile at North Randall, it must be remembered that he stepped the last mile in 58¾, a mark that he is certainly capable of a famous mile at Readville.

* * *

One of the interesting subjects under discussion at Readville is how will Greyworthy, 2:03¾, the famous gray son of Axworthy, behave before the home people. His mile at Poughkeepsie on Thursday, when he took his record, shows the gray flier is right to do a scorching mile at Readville. While his manners were bad during the early season it surely looks as if Walter Cox had now found the key to the gray speed monarch at last, and if so, he will surely crack his present mark.

* * *

A race that is attracting especial attention is the three-year-old trot, on Governor's Day, Thursday, when Governor Channing H. Cox will attend, in which Rose Scott, Favonian and Rogalusa, out, a splendid field of the foals of 1918, will take the word from Starter Frank B. Walker.

* * *

The entries include Slidar, The Great Hall, Volante, The Great Rose, The Great Volo, Stella Wood, Ammunition, Belvue, Betsy Chandler, David Axworthy, Eunice Belle, Finvara, Frisco Lass, Geers, Guy Oxford, Josephine Sharpe, Lee Tide, Marge the Great, Peter Pluto and Peter Harvester.

* * *

Among the horse breeders there is tremendous interest in the 2:07, 2:12, 2:16 and 2:19 trots. These events have an especially fine entry, the greatest are at the top of their form and closely drawn, split heat events, are a certainty. Many of the arriving horsemen believe these trots will furnish the banner events of the week.

One of the very interesting things in connection with the races and the general public seldom contemplates is the vast amount of money which true lovers of the American trotter and pacer expend in breeding, developing and maintenance, and which expenditure is prompted solely by love of the light harness sport.

* * *

The entries of trotters, pacers, futurity colts and fillies at the Readville race meeting number about 600, and represent a valuation of about $3,000,000.

* * *

Men who are devoted to the interests of the light harness horse spend their money without thought of reimbursement, prompted solely by their keen interest as sportsmen in the general public thus have the benefit of seeing at Readville the greatest list of starters in the Grand Circuit events which have been carded in the history of the East.

* * *

The stakes and purses are guaranteed at Readville for the promotion and development of the American trotter and pacer and the advancement of the light harness sport, and for the entertainment of the horse lovers of the country.

BASEBALL PLAYERS PLAN TRIP TO SOUTH AMERICA

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—Several of the Cincinnati National League baseball club players under the name of All Stars of America, are planning a trip to South America this Winter, it was reported here today.

The players from other clubs who are expected to join the tourists are Pertica, Clemmens and Fournier, of the St. Louis Nationals; Snyder and Cunningham of the New York Nationals and Williams of the St. Louis Browns.

The plan is to leave Cincinnati on October 19, playing games en route to and on the Pacific Coast, starting at Seattle and ending at Los Angeles. Whether the journey will be extended to South America depends upon the success attending the trip when Los Angeles is reached.

STARS OF BIG LEAGUES TO MANAGE WINTER CLUBS

St. Louis, Aug. 27.—Arrangements have been completed for the new California mid-Winter baseball league, it was announced here today.

Rogers Hornsby, of the Cardinals, and Harry Heilman, of the Detroit Tigers, will manage and captain two teams at San Francisco, and George Sister, of the Browns, and Rabbit Maranville, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will officiate similarly for two teams at Los Angeles.

Frush Starts Work for Title Bout With Kilbane

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Danny Frush of Baltimore began training here today for his twelve-round decision bout with Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, here on the afternoon of September 17. Frush declares he weighs 130 pounds, only four more than he is required to make on the day of the go.

Only light work was indulged in today. He will begin real work Monday and boxing Wednesday.

Tie Game Played

Blodgett, Ordway & Webber and the Catholic Foresters played a 3 to 3 tie last night.

FOOTBALL WILL GET UNDERWAY NEXT WEEK

Big Elevens Are Preparing for Strenuous Battles on the Gridiron

Next week football training will commence in the majority of the big colleges, with promises of the hardest schedules and closest competition in years. Princeton, having lost but three of the regulars of the championship team, naturally expects to return another year of victory. Yale has more hope than in several seasons, with the reformed system of coaching and training. Harvard has the greatest array of talent in years.

Penn State, which lost rather heavily in material, has a great array of candidates and faces the hardest schedule any big school has taken on in years. After the first two games the schedule is terrific, with a lay-off for Thanksgiving, and the chances of any team carrying through are not good. Pitt seems strong. There is liable to be a surprise early spring on the East by Foster Sanford. There is no secret that Sanford has a bunch of talent at Rutgers, and any season was once like a training season for this year than a real effort to win. He was looking a year ahead and will make a lot of trouble.

Columbia does not promise much in the second year of the comeback, although the early report on talent is encouraging and several veterans of last season show much promise.

The situation in the West is confusing. The Western Conference teams last season ranked as closely together that, with the exception of Northwestern and Indiana, any one might have won. In fact, Wisconsin, in spite of defeat, appeared to have the best team in the conference at the end of the season, while Ohio and Illinois, the leaders, were played down and weakened. Minnesota, which appeared to have better material than any of the other teams, had a most remarkable year, losing all conference games and every one by extremely small scores. The weight of the team failed to carry the punch back of it. The material this Fall is heavier and the team has more experience. Both Illinois and Ohio certainly look better.

On the coast, where the victory of California over Pennsylvania boost to football, Oregon, Washington and Southern California all dispute California's claims to supremacy, and Utah, boasting a veteran team, is out for the scalps of the Northwestern teams.

Army and Navy, under the most favorable conditions they have had to leave the academies to play, will get more scalps than Army claims as many which can repeat last Fall's performances. The fact that the naval authorities have sent the team members back to Annapolis on a specially organized fast freight under conference football training next week shows the interest being taken. The Navy team is stronger than Irvin, than last year's, and Army also claims added speed.

LAST CHANCE FOR BRAVES TO WALLOP CARDS IN TWIN BILL TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY

Two games today signalized the final appearance of the Cardinals in Boston this season. The loyal fans don't care if they never return. After knocking the Mitchmen back four times in a row the St. Louis brigade has wrecked all hopes of a second place team.

The native athletes have not lost that many in sequences since the early part of the season, when eight straight defeats really cost them the pennant.

But when all is said and done, the Braves have surpassed all expectations, have restored snappy baseball to Boston, and deserves a whole lot of credit for their showing in a hectic campaign.

* * *

When a club that isn't rated any better than seventh by anybody whatsoever up into the contender class in August, you must give credit to the outfit. And the Braves did that, whatever their failings three latter days.

* * *

This looked to be Iron Man Watson's day. Two games on Saturday set the stage perfectly for that silent and surprising individual. He has been the only winning Brave pitcher of late, and the longer he goes the better he looks.

Chances of John's chucking a pair of pastimes this p. m. seem impossible, but if he goes in there and wins the first without extra trouble, he's very likely to unfurl a few more curves in the windup.

* * *

Hines and Sherdel were the most probable Cardinal sharpshooters, though you never can tell what that surprising team will do. Loss of the four games has ruined chances of a big crowd for this week-end matinee, but it's a cinch that those who journey to the Wigwam will experience plenty of excitement. In defeat, as they were in victory, the Braves are picturesque.

* * *

Our Braves have to be in some kind of a fight. Looks now as though they had abandoned all hope of finishing one, two, so they seem determined to make a battle out of third place finish. A few weeks ago the Cardinals were farther away from a chance at the money than their habit is from the w. k Atlantic Ocean. But now the same Cards are looming up as possible coin sharers.

* * *

Our Braves have helped them mightily. They dropped the fourth in the row yesterday, and now linger but three games in front of the uproarious St. Louis entry.

Every game the Braves lose now is a tough one. They always have the chance to surge ahead. When the big drive was on the Mitchmen surged. Now that its departed, they hit into double plays instead.

* * *

The wigwamers haven't lost their nerve. They still try courageously. But the fire that makes champions was smothered on the Western trip. The athletes rose surprisingly through the league and were supposed to be better. They gave all they had in a mid-Summer drive. Apparently much is left now but the desire.

On the other hand, the Cardinals went through the first half of the season like smoothly oiled champion pioneers. They lost as a matter of course. At present, though, the various cogs of the machine have been greased in. Everything is running smoothly. Braves, Giants, Pirates make no never mind.

* * *

Branch Rickey's pupils are likely to have more to say about the title than any of the three clubs immediately ahead.

* * *

The fourth San Loney disaster was merely another early-inning splash. The Cards got a lot of runs before Hughey McQuillan had retired after the third. But the flock was sufficient. Fillingim went in and stopped the assault. He was too late. The Brave batters swung lustily, and hit terrifically. They were too late.

* * *

It was just another day of misfortune. Every ball the Cards hit hard went safely. Every big Brave smash, almost, was corralled. Take He'nery Gowdy, f'example. He came up in the second with two on and two out. He hit a curve right on the crown. And the ball shot right into McHenry's hands. One yard, either side, and that outfielder never would have collected it.

* * *

Again in the sixth the same situation arose and eventuated similarly, with the possible exception that Heurney hit the ball a little harder. But McHenry didn't have to stir.

* * *

Horace Ford opened the eighth with a torrid single to left. Hennery tried to chase him around, but Lavan speared another terrific liner and the only thing that prevented a double play was the fact that the ball was hit so hard that Horace didn't have a chance to leave first.

* * *

That's the kind of a P. M. it was. The Braves deserved better luck, but didn't get it. Results are the only things, though, that count in the standing of the clubs.

* * *

The score was 6 to 2, five-sixths of the half dozen being registered before McQuillan retired. After that Perlica was knocked out of the box by the batters and the hostiles had a fest of flingers to the ball pen all the time. Yet it didn't double the slightest difference.

* * *

Barbare, who took over the almost impossible job of filling the Rabbit's shoes, had the misfortune to succeed as any athlete ever did, was handed a very necessary layoff. Dinty has been playing the game for a long time, but he whimpered just about as frequently as the rookie.

* * *

In our opinion, he has been one of the most consistent of the Braves pensionerity this season. Until spike wounds and sprains slowed him up, he played more than his share of the field, and he was a wonderful hitter for the pitchers.

As we see things, another generation is likely to pass through the turnstiles before another Rabbit pops up. And it will be a long time before as sturdy a sub steps into the breach. Boston fans, after watching Scotty and the midget, are inclined to be a bit too critical about shortstops.

LUCK SWINGS VICTORY TO THE RED SOX

White Sox Just Nosed Out in Ninth in 5-4 Contest

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 27.—Fortune rods with the Red Sox in the first game of the series with the White Sox. Hugh Duffy's team won the game, 5 to 4, largely through what has come to be known as "the breaks."

Harry Hooper, former captain of the Boston club, tried to pull a slick play and, if he had succeeded, the Chicago club would have enjoyed at least a tie.

* * *

The break came in the eighth. Hooper doubled, a most peculiar twoBagger. The ball bounced high on the first-base line and Sam Jones tackled it. The apple hopped into the Boston dugout and Hooper and Jones collided. Both went down, but Hooper scrambled to his feet and to second base while Jones had to quit. Harry stepped on his hoof.

* * *

Then Hooper tried a steal of third. He had a big lead on Joe Bush. Only a fine thing would stop him, a perfect peg, and Billie Walter let loose the same.

* * *

Mostil followed with a long liner to John Collins and if Hooper's strategy had succeeded he would have scored. Inasmuch as the White Sox lost by one run, the importance of this play is apparent.

* * *

The game was a rather free-hitting affair, with both sides laying violent bats upon the apple. Two Boston runs were due to errors by Johnson and Mulligan, while one Chicago tally was directly traceable to a poke by Del Pratt. Again, it is apparent if perfect fielding had been done the score would still have been tied.

* * *

The White Sox helped beat themselves in the sixth. Mulligan singled, Ed Collins walked and Hooper beat out a single that hopped off Pratt's boson to fill the sacks. Mostil forced Hooper and Mulligan scored.

Mostil pilfered second. Sheely tapped to Scott and Ed Collins was run down. He turned back to third and Mostil, who had attempted that sack, became confused and ran toward second, a situation that Sheely approached. Mostil could outrun Scott so he reasted on second and Scott put across the diamond to run down Sheely.

At that time runs were scarce and the way Jones was hurling Chicago had a most excellent opportunity of at least tying the tally except for the timely galloping.

Chicago fans proved they do not forget when they extended the most cordial greetings to Ed Collins and Harry Lieboid each time they came to bat. These men participated in the unruly 1913 World's Series with great distinction, and had no part in the "Black Sox" scandal, a fact which the cash customers remember.

CHAMPIONS WIN AND STAY IN FIRST PLACE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—Washington trotted out a pair of wild men yesterday and the Indians held first place with a 6 to 5 victory.

Erickson and Courtney walked six batsmen, and hit batsmen in the third and fifth innings, in which the Indians scored five of their six runs.

Two doubles by Tris Speaker were inserted in those rounds to help runs across.

LYONS WINNER IN THE PEABODY 10-MILE RUN

Peabody, Aug. 27.—George Lyons, of the St. Alphonsus Club of Boston, won the annual ten-mile road race conducted by the Peabody Father Mathew Society. Eldridge Stevens of the same club was second, being less than a yard behind Lyons eight bucks.

Taking a bunch of friends out out in your automobile on a Sunday afternoon is about as successful as a one-legged man on crutches walking up a hill paved with banana peels.

Your friends want to go fifty-fifty on the trip. You buy the gasoline and oil and they insist on furnishing the air and water.

They share the check with you. You pay it and they take the change.

NAME FOUR RING STARS TO PICK FOE FOR CARP

Martin, Moran, McCormick and Beckett Among Those Mentioned for London Bout

Paris, August 27.—Georges Carpentier will be called upon to face an opponent in Albert Hall, London, on December 2, says the sporting newspaper Auto.

The man who will oppose him will be chosen by Major Wilson, the English fight promoter, from four prominent heavyweights, Bob Martin, the present champion of the American expeditionary forces; Frank Moran, the veteran pugilist, Bob McCormick, the English light-heavyweight, and Joe Beckett, whose defeat by Carpentier in December, 1919, provided a sensation for the sporting world.

The Auto newspaper says, will be for twenty three-minute rounds with four-ounce gloves. It is pointed out that, if McCormick should be chosen to oppose Carpentier there must be an agreement that the title to the world's light heavyweight championship will go with the result.

SERES, WILEY, CHAPMAN AND VERKEYN IN RACE

A world's champion after a new record will draw thousands to the Revere Cycle Track tonight. Georges Seres, of France, the title holder, is the man who has required Manager Butler to change the distance of the motor paced race from forty miles to a one hour affair.

Seres maintains he is a better rider than Wiley and as the latter hung up a new record of two dollars and a heady night there is likely to be doings with the Gallia's colleague.

Against the champion will be Wiley, George Chapman and Charley Verkeyn.

The luch of the draw for the pace makers will be an interesting feature. The bitter rivalry that exists between Jap Morin and Charley Stein, the track motor pacers, has added a lot of interest to the races. Each is an experienced and either usually pilots his own.

A brother act will be staged. The Connolys, Tom and Dennie, the Rollins brothers, Jess and Lou, and the McKenzies, Nelson and Walter, will meet in a special sprint match.

RECORD LIST OF ENTRIES FOR TENNIS TITLE PLAY

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—So many entries for the United States lawn tennis singles championship tournament, to be held here beginning September 9, have been received at national tennis headquarters that officials are contemplating a paring of the list to a limit of 128 players.

It is almost certain that all of the high ranking players of 1920 will play and these, coupled with the promised heavy entry of foreign players, has led tennis enthusiasts to speculation on the fortune of the game.

The same method of "shoot" seeding as used in the women's championship will be employed, and it is no longer safe, so the case of the women's draw, which brought together in the early rounds Mrs. Franklin I. Mallory (Molla Bjurstedt) and Suzanne Lenglen, that William T. Tilden, the title holder, and William M. Johnston of California, his most formidable rival, may meet in the opening play.

Lawn tennis officials, however, point out that even should this occur and one of these players be eliminated early it would not detract to any great extent from the interest in the tournament.

It was said the entry list is so beautifully filled with other great American and foreign players that there is no question, even should Tilden and Johnston be drawn in separate brackets, that either would reach the finals.

Entries of the foreign players, it was stated at the Germantown Cricket Club, probably will not be received until after final disposition of the Davis Cup play.

Among the entries already received are Rowland Evans, R. M. Edwards, Watson T. Knight, Percy S. Osborne, Stanley W. Pearson, L. Harry Edwards, Jr., Sydney Thayer, Jr., and William J. Clothier, all of Philadelphia; Watson Washburn, Vincent Richards, Armand L. Brinsmad, B. G. M. Kelleher and Dean Mathey, New York; James M. Davies and Philip Neer, California; Irving C. Wright, Boston; R. Norris Williams and Alfred Hamlett, Chicago; Leon de Turenne, Harvard; A. E. Peterson, Connecticut; R. C. Ockaner, Harold E. Ingersoll and J. Kay Gilbert, St. Louis; Hugh Tallant, O. J. Sweet, L. O. Kamber, W. Stuart Symington, E. Wilson, M. C. Bagot and Alfred H. Hammett.

Tilden, Johnston, R. Norris Williams, Willie Davis, Chuck Garland, Nat Niles, Roland Roberts, Watson Johnson, G. C. Caner, Craig Biddle, Richard Harte and F. T. Hunter, all of whom ranked in the first twenty-five last year, are almost certain to play.

Although he fractured his left hand in the second round, K. O. Charley Elkins of Boston went through to a finish in his ten-round bout with Chick Suggs of Newport, at the Casino A. C. Fall River, last night. Suggs won the decision.

TENNIS FINALS TODAY TO DECIDE SIX NATIONAL TITLES

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The "big day" is on at the Chestnut Hill courts of the Longwood Cricket Club.

In the course of this afternoon there will be decided for the year 1921 the national doubles championship, the national mixed doubles championship, the national father and son doubles championship, the national junior singles championship and (as a national junior doubles championship and the women's invitation singles title, and, as the preliminary and semi-final rounds of play in each case developed no upsets, the very topnotchers in each class were due to p erform.

In the national doubles the team of R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn were to oppose Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards.

In the national women's doubles the team of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Bill Tilden were to face Miss Mary Browne and Billy Johnston.

In the father and son doubles the Andersons, F. G. and F. G. Jr., were to meet the Wears, J. W. and W. P.

In the junior singles, Vincent Richards, the titlist for three years, was to clash with Arnold W. Jones, of Providence.

And in the women's invitation singles Miss May Sutton Bundy was to oppose Miss Mary K. Browne.

* * *

As the result of the almost equal abilities of the various and several opponents tennis of a quality that is seldom witnessed seemed assured and the record gallery of the week was in attendance.

The first event scheduled was the women's singles which was due to start on the championship courts at 2 p. m. An hour later the national doubles was to get underway, and immediately thereafter the mixed doubles and other championship events.

The old debate on the superiority of team play over individual brilliance, or vice versa, was forced again upon the sport following publiclo when the doubles team of William Tilden and Vincent Richards, vanquished the Kinsey brothers, Howard and Clarence, in the second national match of the annual national doubles championship.

* * *

The team play of the Cassi family was a model of perfection, while the play of the Tilden-Richards combine proved terrifically swift, and at times brilliant. The match in straight sets, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4, and by no doubt qualified most nearly the final form team in the championship round this afternoon.

* * *

Evidently realizing that Vin Richards was the better player of the two, in a team aim, the Kinsey's concentrated upon the outlet, concentrated upon the former's backhand. Time and time again Richards proved effective through cagnily handling their placed drives and their most tantalizing lobs, and his ability combined with the brilliance of both him and the world's champion partner, and brilliant flashes by the latter made the task of the Kinsey's team work count for naught.

* * *

The winning of the match, however, proved no sinecure for the Tilden-Richards team, and particularly in the second set did that pair find difficulty in overcoming the sturdy opposition of the coast brothers. Deuce games were frequent throughout the match, and extra games necessary to decide the second set.

The break in the first set came in the fourth game for Howard Kinsey's service failed to work effectively, and after missing the court all his first balls, his seconds proved easy pickings for Tilden and Richards, who repeated the game in the seventh. A service continued to win throughout the set, it ended 6—3 in favor of the Eastern pair.

* * *

Trouble came to the Kinseys in the first game of the second set, for Howard, the younger brother, encountered the same difficulty as had his brother, and Tilden and Richards took the game on Howard's service. The coast pair came back, however, in the eighth game and broke in on Richards' service, winning the set, 8—6.

* * *

Richards and Tilden broke through on both Kinsey's in the third set, winning from Bob's service in the third game and Howard's in the fifth. Tilden's first ball went badly in the sixth game, however, and the Coast team got back one of its losses, only to lose the set, 6—4, and with it the match.

* * *

There were things other than the tennis matches at the Longwood Cricket courts today, for the Friday gallery at the classical turf courts of the Longwood Cricket Club proved to say the playing of both semi-final matches in the national junior championship, both semi-final in the father and son championship, and the finals in the mixed doubles and the boys' doubles title events.

Little Julius Saglowsky of Indianapolis, scarcely fifteen years old and weighing but 100 pounds, feet in height, was crowned king of the boy tennis players when he defeated Sidney Wood of Philadelphia in the final of the boys' singles championship.

* * *

The gallery had an opportunity to marvel at the remarkable come-back of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, who quit tennis several years ago to raise a family of youngsters, and who, at the urging of friends, returned to the game for the purpose of joining the younger women players in overcoming a then much feared Longlen threat.

NEW STARS ARE NEEDED TO SAVE BASEBALL

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

There has been much argument and discussion over the quality of baseball being served in the major leagues. Some lament the lack of ability of new players, some declare that the youngsters are not as good as previous crops. The scarcity of first-rate players is bemoaned by owners and managers.

Players themselves admit that the standard established prior to the war.

No one seems able to lay a finger on the real cause or understand why even the capable players display such lack of ambition and show such indifference. A score of alleged reasons have been advanced for existing conditions.

Recently I determined to try to find out what really is the matter, investigating clubs which are prominent examples of both cases.

I skirmished around, visited and watched. From my observations I would judge that just five of the sixteen major league clubs are hustling and working hard, trying every minute.

Two others which hustled hard during the early season have slumped back into the indifferent, almost loafing style of play.

* * *

Several others have spurted and showed considerable spirit for brief periods.

* * *

LACK OF INTEREST SHOWN.

Recently I have been in teams in their dressing rooms before a game and learned something. One team is right up in the fight and the other, a team mirhaps quite strong, is hopelessly out of it.

In the clubhouse of the contenders were a bunch of earnest fellows, rather quiet, although two were singing in low tones. The manager was sitting with them.

They were talking baseball—of the form of the other club, its pitching staff, who would work, and especially the latest condition of the pitcher they believed would pitch for them.

Three or four of them in a brief period asked how his arm was, made suggestions of how to pitch to certain players on the opposing team.

* * *

This provoked an argument, and a catcher and several pitchers told what their experience with the batters had been.

* * *

I crossed into the other clubhouse. The players were mostly half dressed, lolling on benches or cots. Not fewer than six were smoking cigarettes.

I remained there less than ten minutes, during which time two players received telephone calls from what they called "dames" and discussed plans for seeing these dames that evening.

The manager was not in the clubhouse at all. He arrived just in time to get a uniform and get out with the players to practice.

No one was talking baseball, although some one turned casually whether he would vote or not. Being told he hoped he would, as it was hot and he had been out late.

* * *

It was not hard to understand why one club was fighting for a pennant and why the other was a loser.

* * *

Bill Donovan's case is one of the most surprising developments of the year. Philadelphia released Donovan, and Baker, the owner, is reported to have written him a letter saying that the reason he let him go knew about the world's series of 1919.

Donovan declared his intention of fighting the case and forcing the clearing of his name.

He undoubtedly knew or had been informed that the 1919 series was crooked. He sold at least one club owner about it, and he stated that he had the charges so straight he had a notion to telegraph Comiskey during the series and inform him of what he had heard.

He was not at the series, and until this matter was made public his name was not used in any connection with it.

If managers and players are to be cast out of baseball because they heard that the series was fixed there will be one fine, thorough housecleaning.

RUTH IS SURE YANKEES WILL LAND PENNANT

By BABE RUTH

48 Home Runs to Date 1921.
41 Home Runs same Date 1920.

The question that is being asked now is not so much if I will hit sixty homers, but how will the temporary loss of baker affect the team. Well, as I have said before, it won't, cause the latter can't help to fight all the harder. We will play Ward at third and in the Spring remember, Ward was the sensation of the league. Some think he is better than Baker, but I won't go into that.

They are both great at their jobs and soon as better than Baker is back he will be right with all comers at the far turn like McNally as second is a strong defensive player and a man who can help to develop a hitting streak that will put us in shape. I hope he does, but we are willing to be the team to overcome the handicap. Mike and I were in Boston together.

* * *

There is one thing for Yankee fans to remember. If we have to do it, they can bet that we have been for a couple of weeks until our pitchers get right and then we be able to go on a record breaking win. It may be of interest to know that Harry Frazee is coming into form again, and add him to Bob Shawkey, Carl Mays and Walter Johnson we have some staff.

I am not dealing in futures with Players, but am in a strong again. What he needs is a little work to give him control. I have about abandoned the idea of Harry being of service to us this year, although I would give a lot to see him step in turn with the right-handers.

Harry was pucked the way Elmer Smith was pucked when he joined the Yanks? Well, I should say not. Harry is more when a ball is hit out to center. We know that he is going to get to it as Cleveland fans are to find out. This Speaker is going to get any ball that he can reach. Harry has only about just about 10 per cent. to our ball outfield right now. Very soon that power was needed. He is hitting around .300 and I don't think more than one error is charged against a fielding.

I admit there is no way of explaining our inability to beat the Chicago White Sox. However, it is good for baseball that Kid Gleason is fighting so hard with a seventh place ball club. When we were in Chicago, Judge Landis said after the Sox had beaten us in a double header that had beaten Cleveland: "It speaks volumes for the honesty of baseball to note that Chicago is playing to the limit in New York in the recent conference, and the Yankees and Indians in Cleveland, brushed the Indians today."

* * *

This series with the Indians is important, but it presented somewhat different problems to the home team. We arrived on Saturday morning. The Sox took the lead after the first inning and were never headed. New York, however, had tumbled in the second and injured Caldwell, who was a man needed badly to relieve Mays and Shawkey when they showed signs of fatigue. Caldwell is certainly a game one, and as the Yankees were in the habit of winning the games he started, he was on the way to win a ball game for the club.

* * *

Right down the line we have greater pitching strength than theirs. Although Cleveland leads the league we are going to be forced to pitch every third day, and that is bound to take the standing out of him. In the case of Mails he had won ten games and lost seven according to the last averages, while Bagby won twelve and lost ten. Southern is going well for the Indians, but he is not what I consider a reliable pitcher. He is too easily altered by outside conditions.

"BUT—I can't do that—ever. It would spoil you for me. . . . What in the world would I do if you were spoiled for me, Rix? I couldn't stay—I wouldn't know what to do—where to go in the world. . . . It would be lonely—lonely——"

He Understands

"You understand, don't you, Rix?" she said, rising.

He nodded, rising also, and they descended the steps together and walked slowly away toward Witch-Hollow.

From the hill-top they noticed one of Sprowl's farm wagons slowly entering the drive, followed on foot by several men and a little girl. Her blonde hair and apron fluttered in the breeze. She was too far away for them to see that she was weeping.

"I wonder what they've got in that wagon?" said Quarren curiously.

So they came across the fields and down through fragrant lanes to Witch-Hollow, where the fat arrester ganboled ponderously around them with fat barkings and waggings, and where Molly, sewing on the porch, smoothed the frail and tiny garment over her knee and raised her pretty head to survey them with a smiling intelligence that made Strelsa blush.

"I just will say she found an opportunity to whisper into Molly's ear. "If you look at us that way you'll simply make him miserable and break my heart."

Molly glanced after Quarren, who wandered indoors to find a cigarette in the smoking room.

"If you don't marry that delectable young man," she said, "I'll take a stick and beat you, Strelsa."

"I don't want to—I don't want to!" protested the girl, getting possession of Molly's hands and covering them with caresses. And, resting her soft lips on Molly's fingers, she looked at her, and the young matron saw tears glimmering under the soft, dark lashes.

"I can't love him—that way," whispered the girl. "I would if I could. . . . I couldn't care for him more than I do. . . . And—and it terrifies me to think of losing him."

"Losing him?"

"Yes—by doing what you—what he—wishes!"

"You think you'll lose him if you marry him?"

"I—yes. It would spoil him for me—spoil everything for me in the world——"

"Well, you listen to me," said Molly, exasperated. "When he has stood a certain amount of this silliness from you he'll really and actually turn into the nextess comfide you think you want. But he'll go elsewhere for a mate. There are plenty suitable in the world."

"Will we women never learn the truth?—that at best we are incidental to man, but that, when we love, man is the whole baily thing to us?"

"Let him escape and you'll see, Strelsa."

The girl flushed, dumb, watched her out of wide gray eyes in which unshed tears had dried. The pretty matron slowly shook her head.

And That Also

"Because you once bit into falsified fruit you laid the axe to the entire orchard. What nonsense!

Very well; think it! Hell get over it some time, but you never will, Strelsa. You'll remember it all your life."

The girl lowered her head and, resting her cheek on Molly's shoulder, looked down at the baby garment on her knees.

"That also?" she whispered.

"Yes. . . . Unless we pass that way, also; we can never die content. . . . But a month ago I did not know it. . . . Strelsa—Strelsa! Are you never going to know what love can be?"

The girl rose slowly, flushing and whitening by turns, and stood a moment, her hands covering her eyes.

And standing so:

"Do you think he will go away—from me—some day?"

"Yes; he will go—unless"——

"Must it be—that way?"

"It will be that way, Strelsa."

"I had never thought of that."

"Think of it, as the truth. It will be so unless you love him in his own fashion—and for his own sake. Try—if you care for him enough to try. . . . And if you do, you will love him for your own sake, too."

"I—I had thought of—of giving myself—for his sake—because he wishes it. . . . I don't believe I'll be—much afraid—of him. Do you?"

Molly's wise sweet eyes sparkled with silent laughter. Then without another glance at the tall, young girl before her she picked up her sewing, drew the needle from the hem, and smoothed out the lace embroidery on her knees.

A Change of Heart

After a while she said:

"Jim's returning on the noon train. Will you and Rix be here to luncheon?"

"I don't know."

"Well, ask him. I have my orders to give if you'll ask."

Strelsa walked into the house, Quarren still hunting about for a cigarette, looked up as she entered the smoking room.

"Where the dickens does Jim keep his cigarettes?" he asked. "Do you know, Strelsa?"

"You poor boy!" she exclaimed laughingly. "Have you been searching all this time? The wonder is that you haven't perished. Why didn't you ask me for one when we were at—our house?"

"Your house," he corrected, smiling.

Her gray eyes met his with a frightened sort of courage.

"Our house—if you wish"—But her lips had begun to tremble, and she could not control them or force from them another word for all her courage.

He came over to where she stood, one slim hand resting against the wall, and she looked back bravely into his keen eyes—the clear, direct, questioning eyes of a boy.

"I—I will—marry you," she said. A swift flush touched his face to the temples.

"Don't you—want me?" she said, tremulously.

"If you love me, Strelsa."

"Isn't it enough—that you—love"——

"No, dear."

She lost her color.

"Rix! Don't you want me?" she faltered.

"No; unless you want me, Strelsa."

She drew a long, unsteady breath. Suddenly the tears sprang to her eyes, and she held out both hands to him, blindly.

"I—do love you," she whispered. . . . I'll give what you give. . . . Only you must teach me—not to be—afraid."

Her cheek lay close to his shoulder; his arm drew her nearer. And, after he had waited a long while, her gray eyes, which had been watching his face, slowly closed, and she lifted her lips toward his.

THE END

HER OWN WAY

STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S STRUGGLES

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

THE cousin was Samuel Bloane, Dr.'s only relative besides herself. Since the uncle had broken permanently with his nephew, the one way in which that nephew could get into touch with the elderly man's money was through the neice.

"Perhaps he thinks that Uncle Dan supports me, and that I can persuade him to forgive his namesake. Or, worse still, perhaps he fancies that I am to be Uncle Dan's heir, and so wants to know me and get on my good graces. Or he may fancy that he can annoy me into a promise to help him financially."

Fever Follows Chill

She felt sick at the idea. She began to shiver violently, whether from fright or nervousness she did not know.

The delightful memories of the evening were swept away by the discovery of the identity of the man whose presence she had learned to dread.

When, after several hours, Helen Corman's child gave way to a hot, burning sensation, she knew that she had not finished paying for her expedience on the night of the show-storm.

When morning came she was too ill to attempt to go out. Her throat was sore, her head ached violently.

Putting on a wrapper, she went into the hall where the boarders in Ovington house about downstairs. In a hoarse voice Helen asked her if she could please come up to her room when she could spare the time to do so.

Then the girl crawled miserably back to bed and lay there, thinking.

Instead of being the independent creature she had determined to be, she must ask a favor of her landlady.

This she proceeded to do with the best grace she could muster. She explained that she had a severe cold and dare not go to business.

Might she trouble Mrs. Ovington to telephone to Miss Dalrymple in her department at Terriberry's and explain this fact?

Mrs. Ovington consented to do this. She also said gravely that she would bring Miss Gorman something to eat.

Helen thanked her, but insisted that just at present she needed no food, but would try to sleep and rest for the time being.

She soon fell asleep, for the feverish condition made her drowsy.

In her dreams the face of Daniel Sloane, Junior, haunted her.

At noon, Mrs. Ovington appeared with a cup of tea and a slice of toast. Helen drank the tea, but the toast hurt her throat so much that she could not eat it.

"If you are not better soon you must have a physician, Mrs. Ovington declared. "To be frank, Miss Gorman, I consider that it would be only fair to me as well as to yourself that you would allow me to send for a physician now. You know, in case you should have any serious trouble with your throat, there might be a risk"——

Too Much of a Risk

She hesitated, but Helen supplied the rest of the sentence.

"You mean that it would be a risk to you and to your lodgers. Yes, I understand your position. May I trouble you, then, to send for a physician?"

Mrs. Ovington drew a sigh of relief.

"Who?" she questioned.

"I do not care," Helen replied.

"But surely you will want your own physician?" the landlady suggested.

"I prefer that you call in the man you are in the habit of consulting," Helen said quietly. "As you know him, you would feel more confidence in his verdict than that of a stranger."

She saw that she had scored a point.

"Perhaps you are wise, my dear," was the smiling response. "I will telephone then for Dr. Hall. He is my doctor and quite capable."

When Dr. Hall arrived he was able to reassure the landlady with regard to the nature of her lodger's indisposition.

There was nothing at all dangerous nor contagious in the attack. It was only a severe sore throat induced by exposure to cold and dampness.

Mrs. Ovington listened to this verdict, her face indicative of satisfaction. She expressed herself as glad to wait on Miss Gorman until she should be able to be up and about again.

"How long will she be ill?" she questioned.

That depends upon how obedient a patient she is, and on how great are her powers of recuperation," the physician said, evasively.

"I fancy you are rather reduced physically by overwork—perhaps by worry—and by improper diet," he explained to Helen when Mrs. Ovington had left the room. "You young women are not careful enough about what and when you eat—and you are probably like all the rest of the girls of your age. Tell me truly—do you get regular meals at regular and sensible hours?"

WHAT CAUSES BAD TEETH

—By Brice Belden, M.D.—

KEEPING the teeth clean is by no means the only way in which their decay is to be prevented.

Anything which lowers vital resistance tends to favor deterioration of the teeth.

Perhaps too much attention has been concentrated upon mouth conditions to the exclusion, more or less, of constitutional factors. Cleanliness is absolutely essential, but there are other considerations just as important.

It is to be remembered that germ infection is governed largely by the failure of the body cells to produce substances which antagonize bacteria. This failure depends in part upon faulty diet. It is true that the acids produced by the fermentation of starches and sugars cause decay, but even this factor is kept in abeyance if the diet in general is what it should be.

Experiments have shown that it is a deficiency in vitamines which is one of the most important factors leading to a lowering of vital resistance. Guinea pigs fed upon a diet lacking in vitamines have manifested loosening of the teeth, bleeding of the gums, pyorrhea and a loss of lime in the bones of the jaw.

Foods such as good, clean, unheated milk, butter, fruits and salads go far toward insuring a sufficient supply of vitamines. Yeast is also a source of vitamines.

In addition to the question of diet there is the matter of keeping up the general health by an observance of all the laws of hygiene. To this end one must get a sufficient share of sunlight and fresh air. There is no doubt that sunlight is an important source of our energy.

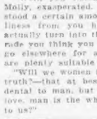
Mrs. Solomon Says—

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

VERILY, verily, my Daughter, there is no rose-garden without its bee, no soda fountain without its fly, and no Summer resort without its "Vamp."

For wheresoever thou goest in search of heartsease and delight, there shalt thou find ONE woman who maketh life unbearable for all the rest of women.



Behold, I have watched the Surf-Siren at her work in the waves and in the ballroom. Yet, with all my wisdom, I have not found the secret of her charm, nor solved the mystery of her allurement.

For she is not always the most beautiful amongst the Beach Beauties, neither the youngest nor the wisest; yet men turn toward her as needles toward a magnet, as flies toward a candy shop, and mosquitoes toward a front piazza.

The callow youth and the octogenarian, the thrill-proof bachelor and the devoted husband, arose, as one man, and follow after her.

At sight of her, their eyes light up, and boredom droppeth from them, and weariness is no more.

And Lo, the "settled" man, who scorned to dance the new dances is straightway smitten with a wild fever to trip the light fantastic, and persuadeth her to teach him all the new steps.

The Tired Business Man, who hath forgotten his tennis is inspired with a sudden passion to renew his game, and urgeth her to join in his practice.

The bridge fiend leaveth the card table, in order that he may while away his hours of relaxation with her chatter.

It requireth even stalwart men to teach her to SWIM!

But the woman KNOW her by instinct as mice know the coming of a house cat; and at sight of her they shudder and gather in their husbands!

They know her by the droop of her picture hat, from under which she peepeth.

They know her by her subtle silences and the overworking of her eyes.

They know her by her permanent wave, which cometh not out, and by her smile which cometh not off.

They know her by the perfection of her dancing and the invisibility of her bathing cap.

Yea, they have her number, and their knives are out and their hammers ready and waiting.

They play her with smiles and with cooings, but in secret they gnash their teeth.

And, behold, when the Summer hath passed, even as a steamer that hath passed a quiet shore, she leaveth a trail of breakers in her wake.

For no man that hath seen her ever forgetteth her.

Neither doth any women!

And her name is written down in their books in letters of phosphorus!

But be of good cheer, my Daughter, and scorn her not.

For WITHOUT her a Summer resort would be duller than a Sunday afternoon on Main street and sadder than a jazz orchestra without a drummer.

HATS FOR FALL WEAR

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

LOVELY as the foliage is the first Fall millinery, with its vivid colors and its clever combinations. Autumnal tones in silk duvetyn create becoming hats, and embroidery is the favored trimming. Black satin with lace is combined into Spanish effects and the result is truly charming.

Everywhere the demand is for hats that one can wear well with bobbed hair, perhaps because there are so many bobbed heads to be hatted after the Summer season. Hats with small head sizes and attractive lines, especially from the back view, are being made to answer the requirements of the younger set.

Red is among the favored shades for Autumn wear and lend color to a navy tricotine suit or frock. Soft crushable models that follow the trend of the Summer sport hats, with gay worsted trimmings, are now being seen, and occasionally one finds black silk embroidered motifs on the red duvetyn. Soft round crowns and tiny turning brims are flatteringly youthful.

Harding blue duvetyn hats are in vogue accompanied by flat flowers and unusual veils.

For dressy occasions there are alluring hats of black satin combined with black lace, draped manilla style. A rather small shape of the black satin has a border of lace over the edge, concealing the brim, with the form of the Spanish coquette. Then, a long sash end of the lace will drop off the right side of the hat and hang off the shoulder. These hats go nicely with bobbed hair.

Black velvet hats are sprinkled among the selection of satin and duvetyn, and for tailored wear hatters' plush is again made up into the smartest of sailors, banded in black grosgrain.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Browned flour, useful for thickening stews and brown soups, can be made by spreading flour thinly on a plate, then placing the plate in a moderate oven and turning flour frequently until brown. It should then be bottled and tightly corked, when it will keep indefinitely.

Stained floors need scarcely ever be touched with a wet cloth if they are rubbed over every day with a brush over which a paraffin rag has been tied.

Make two jellies, one red, one yellow, clear and with lemon. Whip a gill of cream very stiff. Put on the jelly in uneven shapes and stick an almond or two in each shape.

* * *

To prevent salt from becoming damp and lumpy, when filling the bottles add seven grains of rice; these will absorb the moisture, and the salt will keep dry and fine.

* * *

When the contents of a saucepan boils over on a stove while cooking sprinkle a little salt upon it. There will then be no unpleasant smell of burning.

Glasses should be washed in a wooden bowl, as there is less danger of their being broken.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

A STORY OF A SEARCH FOR A HUSBAND

By Evangeline Weir

MISS BETSY BLUR, sitting alone in her big kitchen, decided that she was lonely. "I've a notion to get married," she said to the cat. "If I had a man to run this farm I could find time to do things I've always wanted to do, and I would not have to eat alone. I do hate to eat without talking to someone."

"I guess I'll have to go another time," Miss Betsy said to the man in wise and trouble me." Miss Betsy said to her cat after the tenth failure to find a man who satisfied all the virtues necessary for a good farmer and husband.

That night the wind blew the roof off Miss Betsy's shed and she called up the village carpenter to repair it. He sent a new man equipped with hammer, saw and nails, who went to work immediately.

Expressed Satisfaction

Miss Betsy liked the way the carpenter worked and expressed her satisfaction. The carpenter liked the pie which Miss Betsy gave him for lunch and praised her skill. He admired her house and farm and suggested improvements which seemed good to Miss Betsy.

She wondered if she might venture to hope that she had found her mate. The second day she made up her mind; the third day she determined to act. His work being finished, she invited the carpenter to stay to supper.

"Farming is pleasant work," he admitted. "I'd rather do it than shingle roofs."

"Can you farm as well as you shingle roofs?"

"I was raised on a farm," he replied. "I left it when my mother and sister died. You can't run a farm without a capable woman."

Miss Betsy had her opportunity. "Why don't you get married?" she questioned.

"So many women are shiftless."

Again Miss Betsy approved.

"The modern woman cares only for clothes, clubs and moving pictures," he added.

"There are a few old-fashioned women left," Miss Betsy suggested.

"They are mostly married."

Miss Betsy looked at her apron and said in a low voice, "Not all of them."

"Nearly all," he answered.

"You ought to have a home," she admitted, looking at the cat.

"Only a woman can make a home," he admitted.

"And a woman who is—is settled," ventured Miss Betsy.

"I never did like flighty females," he acknowledged.

The shed was finished, but the carpenter continued to spend the evenings with Miss Betsy and the cat. Everybody in the neighborhood had decided that it would be a "match." They waited impatiently for an announcement, which was not given. "They are too bashful," they said. "Perhaps a shower would hurry things along."

A "shower" was planned. Cakes were baked, a ham boiled and other things considered necessary for the important event were generously supplied for the surprise to be given Miss Betsy. "But little pitchers have ears," and one of them told Miss Betsy all about it.

Miss Betsy was not displeased; in it she saw her opportunity to gain her end.

The eventful evening arrived and with it Mr. Nelson, the carpenter. Miss Betsy had decided that it should be a proposal on business principles.

She has been a profitable year for farmers," she said, looking at the ceiling. "I am thinking of taking a partner into business with me. He must be honest, industrious and without bad habits." She waited for an answer or a question, but none came to relieve the strain. Only the cat purred as it continued and wondered how a man acted in a like situation. "I've got my eye on a—a—no—no—man," she stammered.

A Fool Man

"What sort of a man?" he asked innocently.

"Just a fool man!" Miss Betsy snapped. "One that doesn't know a woman from a cow."

"I never knew a man that couldn't distinguish between a woman and a cow," he replied, seriously.

Miss Betsy forgot the fine business proposal so carefully studied. She caught up a hand mirror and held it before his face. "I'll show you that I'm not," she said angrily. "The whole neighborhood, men, women, children and dogs are going to give me a shower, and I'm not sure they are probably already on the way."

The door opened and the crowd entered with bundles, boxes and baskets. Miss Betsy sat silent and helpless, while the shower of bundles fell into the lap and over her head until she was almost covered with the well-meant misery. The carpenter stepped to her side.

"Miss Blur and I are going to run the farm on shares for the future, and we," she said angrily, "the shower or—thunder storm," he said, smiling down on the smilingly triumphant Miss Betsy.

Bank Backing, Aided by Short Covering, Stimulates Wall Street to Brief Rally

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

Railroad reports now being issued are showing the benefits derived from wage reductions. Following the 12 per cent. cut, in effect since July 1, the reports thus far show substantial increases in net railway operating income as compared with the same month in 1920—while on the other hand the gross income has, in many cases, decreased.

The earnings of some of the larger roads are showing up in encouraging manner, in the opinion of several officials, and must be attributed not only to the wage reductions but to the economies which have been put into effect in the management.

Pennsylvania's report, for example, issued yesterday, showed an increase amounting to $4,343,191 over the figures of last year, and Southern Pacific gained $467,890 in net operating income. Increases have also been shown in the July statements of the Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland, Union Pacific, and New York, Ontario & Western.

American Woolen is retaining its place in the sun.

It is understood that the company has more unfilled orders on hand to handle at the moment. It is practically assured that the mills will be running full throughout the year.

The new Spring lines are occupying the greater part of the capacity, with the old lines being cleaned up as rapidly as possible.

Unlike the steel industry, the company has made no reductions in wages aside from the one made last Spring, and the company has as large a force working today as ever before in its history.

Like all other false reports on Mexican Petroleum, the latest also apparently originated from the "voices in the air."

Many traders are hoping for some good upturn to follow the tax payments on September 15, and should their hopes be built on a solid foundation, the preliminary advance should begin before that date, however, as those having big payments to meet will make full preparations before hand. However, the upturn, should it develop, may only by a rally, as there are many folks who would welcome higher prices to realize on more stocks, and while the market remains leaderless, this cannot be accomplished without inviting a reaction.

* * *

It will never be known how much money was made and lost in the brief period in which Mexican Petroleum dropped from 90⅜ to 84⅛ and then rebounded to 90⅞—a move that canceled much of the decline.

Many stop orders were caught on the break, and some were also thrown overboard by frightened holders. But the bulk of the selling came from the professionals, who failed the opportunity to force the price down. However, when they tried to cover little stock was to be had.

The National Bank of Commerce calls attention to the fact that despite the heavy shipments of gold, holdings of the fourteen chief European gold holding countries show a diminution in their gold holdings from January 1 to July 1, and that these losses are comparatively slight. "Increments to this country a thousand since the first of the year," says the bank, "are chiefly accounted for by three great streams of the metal, consisting of newly mined supplies from Africa, coming by way of London; of gold yielding up by India, also coming by way of London; and of metal thought to have originated from Russian sources, eventually coming to America through various European countries."

There are five years of hard times in store for the shipping interests of the world, according to David C. Reid. He said:

"It will require that time to rid the surface of the globe of undesirable ships which were built during the war. At the present time there are 12,000,000 tons superfluous tonnage on the seven seas. It is scattered all over.

"Mr. Reid said he did not believe that the $2.50 which had been offered to the Shipping Board for the wooden ships was too low a price. He declared that it was a good thing for the government to rid itself of these ships."

$7,000,000 Deficit?

The United States Rubber six months' statement of earnings is due to appear next week. It is understood it will show, after payments of dividends required in the first half year, a deficit of $7,000,000, for the year 1920 the surplus was reduced from $21,220,000, to $14,220,000. Which, after the payment of the preferred dividend, equals $12.77 per share on the $51,000,000 common stock. Both the first preferred and common broke down to new low levels, heretofore not seen since long before the war.

First preferred, an 18 non-cumulative issue, sold at 75, off 7 points from Thursday's close. The price crumbling on offerings of 100 shares between 78 1-2 and 72 1-4 there were no sales. The common was present for sale all day with 1,000-share transactions frequent.

With a profit and loss surplus of over $15,000,000 and bank borrowing declining, directors have no intention of omitting payments on the $45,000,000 first preferred stock. It is the equity shares that must bear the burden of readjustment.

Dividend Declarations

The Edmund B. Jones Corporation (ex dividend Sept. 1) declared a dividend of 1½ per cent. on its preferred stock, payable Oct. 1.

The Chemical National Bank has declared its regular bi-monthly dividend of 4 per cent., payable September 1. The Merchants' Refining Company, Baltimore, has declared its quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the common stock, payable October 1.

BANKERS HELP TO REVIVE MARKET

Easier Credits Result in Rally of 2 to 5 Points on Many Active Shares

By BROADAN WALL.

Registered, U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Aug. 27.—Prominent local bankers late Wednesday decided that support would be extended to the stock market and an effort made to restore public confidence in the business and the security markets. Because of the fact that two of the points which occurred in the most severe slumps in history.

Groups which are in charge of the market for various stocks suggested to the banking institutions that credit be made easier so as to encourage the stock market and an improvement of the security markets. The support extended to the general list was helpful by short covering. The quotations rose the position of the shorts became uncomfortable and forced recession in sizable purchases which closed the general list around the highest prices for the day.

The decision of the bankers to stimulate operations for the purpose of reflection in an easier renewal rate for call loans of 5 per cent. on the floor of the stock exchange. Where a one-half per cent. was charged outside of that institution. Time money for short periods was also on more liberal supply.

The large ratio of reserve being shown in the local Federal Reserve Bank statement is causing some added confidence owing to the maintenance of the present rediscount rate by the directors in this. In view of the willingness of the banking interests to see higher quotations for stock it should not be surprising if the discount rate was lowered next week.

A strong stock market with lower interest rates would induce many people who have been holding aloof to enter the stock market. This buying would also enable the banks to reduce their loans to a lower level of prices to unload some of the dubious collateral which were taken over from big operators and which have been in the vaults for months past. Rubber and United Drug were exceptions to the general strength. Before noon rumors were current that the Rubber Company's statement for the first six months of this year would show a substantial deficit. Belated liquidation accounted for the heaviness of United Drug, but the movement was not large. Some short covering of shares were also likely pressure.

There have been working on a reorganization plan for this company for many weeks. At one time practically all of the shares of directors interested had agreed to a plan, but at the last minute some objections were registered. In view of the improved banking situation it would not be surprising if another attempt was made in the immediate future to put a readjustment plan through. Sterling touched a new low price early in the day. Its heaviness reflects the poor outlook for the copper industry.

Famous-Players Lasky, attention to the strong position of which was directed in this column yesterday morning, rose nearly four points, a premium of one-sixteenth of 1 per cent. was charged during the forenoon to borrow the stock. This was the first time that a premium has been levied on that issue. Prominence was charged on account of a dozen different issues.

A few weak features reappeared in mid-afternoon, following the covering of shorts. United States Rubber first preferred on a few transactions fell to 72, compared with 82, the last preceding sale on Thursday. The common lost 2 points to 41. Baldwin scored an extreme loss of 1⅞, to 73½ and Republic Steel rose nearly 2 points to 65⅝. Mexican Pete after showing a gain of 3½ to 90⅞, receded to 87½.

PROVIDENCE BARBERS DOING LESS BUSINESS

Providence, Aug. 27.—Hair cuts and shaves are going out of style, according to local barbers. They say that hard times have hit them harder than any other class. Men are shaving themselves. Men who were once much worried if a week passed without a trim, a singe and a neck shave, now let their hair grow, the barbers say.

EXPECTING BIG DROP IN U. S. COTTON CROP

Unfavorable crop reports are responsible for the rapidly advancing prices and broadening speculation on the New York Cotton Exchange.

The October delivery sold up to 15.34, by nearly 1½ cents a pound or $7.50 a bale from the low of Thursday. May cotton touched 16 cents a pound.

Excessive heat and lack of rain in the Southwest and too much moisture in the South Atlantic section, together with the heavy toll now being taken by insect pests, make it increasingly evident that the cotton crop has deteriorated rapidly during August.

The trade expect the coming government report to indicate but little if any over 7,000,000 bales for 1921.

Constructive legislation at Washington and indications of increasing stability in the cotton goods market are factors influencing the current upward movement in the staple.

RICE ASSOCIATION WILL HOLD CONCORD REUNION

The Edmund Rice Association holds its annual reunion today at the homestead in the neighboring town of Wayland. This morning the members, including several from Concord will inspect the old farm, the early home of the family in America settled in 1638. A box luncheon will be enjoyed at noon, followed this afternoon with a business meeting, over which H. Eugene Rice of Norwood will preside. Officers for the coming year are to be elected.

PENN. R. R. TO FIGHT LABOR BOARD DECISION

Philadelphia, Aug. 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad "will go to the mat" with the railroad board over the recent decision of that body, according to W. F. Allen, assistant to president in charge of operation. Allen further also said that until the railroads are detailed return to normal is impossible. "It took fifteen years after the Civil War to do it," he said, "but it won't be that long."

RECRUITING IN U. S. STOPPED BY SPAIN

Washington, Aug. 27.—Recruiting in the United States by Spanish officials for Morocco service has been suspended on orders from Madrid, the Spanish embassy announced.

The Spanish government, in view of the fact that many Spanish subjects who have joined the Spanish Legion for service in Morocco, has suspended enlistments in the United States," the embassy's announcement said.

Cuba Cane Sugar

Subscriptions to the new credit for Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation has reached approximately $10,000,000, and it should be announced this week that the amount is subscribed. Some of the legal details in connection with the credit are still under consideration, which is one reason why the credit has not gone forward more rapidly.

MATCH MARKET HAS IMMENSE OVER-SUPPLY

Spillane Gathers Evidence of Business Revival on Tour of Middle West

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

On the Road, Aug. 26.—In some offices in Middle Western cities the visitor finds a notice displayed which reads:

SIT DOWN.
But—
DON'T PARK.

There is a tremendous oversupply of matches. The chemical plants in the Niagara river district and Buffalo have produced stock enough to meet two years' demands.

Passenger traffic on the Great Lakes is very heavy. This, of course, is the height of the excursion period, but that does not explain in full the abnormal increase. A conspicuous feature is the large number of automobile parties who outline the boats between Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo in a break in their journeys between the West and the East.

LAKE RATES RAISED.

These big lake steamboats have capacity for about 1,000 passengers and but few have more than 300 staterooms for accommodations than these 300, many of the boats have stayed almost to the level of railroad fares plus Pullman, but that makes no difference.

General conditions may be bad, but the public gives evidence of having a fair amount of money for recreation.

Buffalo gets a large revenue from honeymooners and visitors to the Pan-American, a potent attraction to the newlyweds. It is a common thing for a person who inquires of a ticket agent for a train for the west at Buffalo for direction about the city to get the answer, "I'm sorry, sir, but I'm a stranger myself."

Most frequently you meet persons who seem strangers themselves. Then you suddenly recall having seen them at the fair.

The Buffalo Traction Company is under the management of Mr. Pullen, who was vice-president of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit in charge of the Broad Street subway. He reports traffic hardly up to last year, but more than seven days' hours in 1920, for on Sundays and holidays there not infrequently are three cars to a trolley train between Buffalo and Niagara Falls and last Sunday they ran a dozen cars to a train, which is little else than there were seats in the cars. The high speed trains run on ten minute headway. The service is excellent.

A LAMP "BRAINERY."

On a brownstone in the outskirts of Cleveland the General Electric Company has 50 acres developed like a park, offering, along winding roads and amid flower beds and beautiful lawns, are various structures of interest. Here are laboratories for research work in the physics of light. Here is the "brainery" of the National Lamp Works, a subsidiary of the General Electric. The National Lamp has 28 plants in America, but Cleveland is the headquarters, with N. H. Hoynton, general manager of the Hockeye Division, in charge.

That park is the heart or the home of the Mazda lamp of which the General Electric produces one million a year. One of the structures in the park is a bank, a branch of the Cleveland Trust Company. Recruits for the laboratories are drawn almost exclusively from the 678 universities and colleges of the United States. Every year in the last nine years (with two exceptions (1912 and 1914), has shown a great increase in the use of the lamp. This year, no doubt, will make the third. The greatest use has been in industrial establishments. With the slump in manufacturing business generally the lamp company has been affected. For the first six months this year it is off 28 per cent. in sales. The expectation is this will be down to 15 or 20 for the year.

Here is the order in which the lamp sells ordinarily:

To industrial establishments.

In the home.

In commercial houses (stores and offices).

Miniature lamps for automobiles and the farm.

Last year the sale of the lamps aggregated $32,000,000. And this makes up only a modest portion of Uncle Sam's bill for artificial light.

Atlantic Gulf Earnings

For the six months ended June 30 last the direct net earnings of the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship Lines, principally from the operation of its tanker fleet combined with those of the Clyde, Mallory, New York & Cuba Mail, New York & Porto Rico and Southern Steamship companies, were $1,349,037. This is after the deduction of all charges, but before accruing interest on the Atlantic-Gulf collateral trust 5s and other sundry miscellaneous obligations. Operating expenses have been reported as high, and that until the earnings in excess of draft upon those funds amounting to $429,514; and expenses have been incurred with a special charge of $500,000, representing the half-year period's proportion of the cost of reconstructing the Steamship San Lorenzo. Depreciation credits have been set up during the six months amounting to $1,167,342. The total of those three items is $2,806,856.

Crop Conditions

The American Steel & Wire Company reports crop conditions improved from rains during last few weeks in the west.

Cotton is not rallying at all, however. This crop handicaped all season will not exceed the 50 per cent. crop estimate. Texas particularly reports heavy deterioration of crop in past week.

Forage crops, pastures and hay lands are again becoming green. Potatoes and sweet potatoes in their certificates materially benefitted. Tobacco also shows improvement. Alfalfa and clover show considerable improvement.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW York, Aug. 27.—Stocks Friday gave an exhibit of what is likely to happen in any market that is steadily held for weeks at a time without any recovery to speak of in the compuscence of the short sellers. The recovery, which extended over a large range almost as wide as the list of quoted stocks, ranged from one to five points in the most active issues. There was more or less confecture as to the incentive for the buying, which was apparent from the opening. The Federal Reserve statement was excellent for the system as a whole, while the New York bank showed a gain from 72.2 to 74.6, which compares with 35.5 a year ago. Gains in gold with unrivaled note circulation served to strengthen the position in the face of the small expansion in deposits. An excellent set of railroad statements notably that of Union, furnished a comfortable basis for. The rails were not as strong as the industrials, but this undoubtedly is due to the fact that interest in the latter was much larger and more widely extended.

SOME idea of the congesting on the short-side of the market may be obtained from the long list of stocks showing at a premium. Prices which range from 1-64 to 2-8 with United Fruit commanding the higher figures. These premium stocks include practically every group among the industrials and the number is said to be larger than at any time in the history of the street.

The sharpest upturns Friday were in the most heavily shorted issues such as Mexican Petroleum, American International, Crucible, General Electric and Studebaker.

From the opening the market advanced very rapidly and within twenty minutes gains of one to five points had been registered throughout the list. The driving in of the short interest led to reports of new financing. Financial interests here had combined to prevent further depreciation of securities prices.

One of the features of the opening was Crucible Steel, which gained 3-4 of a point on the initial transaction at 61. Within twenty minutes it had advanced to 67, there being no sales between 61 and 65, the higher price. This was fairly indicative of the day's stocks and was proof that the advance was due largely to short covering.

Little news came to the street to affect the market one way or the other. Earlier reports that had been reported, with other shipments on the way from India, Great Britain, Holland, Australia and Switzerland. None of the Central South American shipments are of particular significance.

There has been a good deal of comment as to the origin of the gold which is being sent here. The three principal governments banks of Europe have failed in show any depreciation in their gold holdings during the last six months. In one bank it was pointed out that the gain in bills of this gold is coming either from Australia or from Russia, in the latter case coming through neutral countries. Central and South American shipments are a direct drain on the supplies held by these countries.

Call money loaned as low as 4 per cent. in the outside market, although the bulk of the business there was done in 4½ per cent. On the Stock Exchange the renewal rate was 5 per cent. The demand was somewhat larger than in recent days, but was not of important volume.

The railroad group was strong in the belief that while the funding bill has been delayed temporarily, it is only a question of time when the measure will pass Congress". There is a tendency in conservative quarters to believe that the effect of this measure has been over-estimated, but it is a fact that has been influential in market movements.

The market was not without its cross currents. United Drug and the common and preferred stocks of U. S. Rubber both sold at new low record prices, while the rest of the market was advancing. Cuba Cane Sugar took as a weak feature, despite the announcement that subscriptions to a new credit are making satisfactory progress. $10,000,000 thus far having been subscribed.

A statement of the U. S. Rubber Company, which had been expected Friday, will not be made public until the first of next week. There is good reason to believe that it will show a deficit of slightly less than $10,000,000.

To the long list of stocks which have carried a premium recently Famous Players was added on Friday, sixteenth was charged for borrowing the shares and later in the day was increased to one-eighth. The call was strong on buying attributed to short. It is understood that the group which accumulated it under 60 is beginning to dispose of some of its holdings.

The Atlantic Gulf & West Indies reports for the six months ended June 30, profits of $1,349,037 after all charges, but before the fixed interest on the collateral trust 5s and the other miscellaneous obligations of the company. These earnings were derived largely from the operation of its tanker fleet and the New York and Mallory, New York and Cuba, New York and Porto Rico and Southern Steamship Companies.

The weakness in International Mercantile Marine has led many leaders to a belief that the shipping industry is in worse condition than really is the case. International Mercantile Marine preferred is selling at a lower price than the total of 42 per cent. accrued dividends. Statement by President P. A. S. Franklin talking a more hopeful view of the future of the shipping business failed to arouse enthusiasm.

COSTS $500,000 A MONTH TO BE IDLE

Interest and Other Expenses Total 10 Million a Year With No Output

The high cost of idleness is revealed in the statement that it is costing the Anaconda Copper Mining Company $500,000 a month to stay closed down.

Production of ore was stopped in April, but it was not until toward the latter part of that month tha all departments ceased functioning. Ore and concentrates on hand were cleaned up and it is probable the actual expense of Anaconda in the first month of its shut-down were considerably in excess of this sum.

These facts show why mining men prefer to keep their properties open until the absolute stagnation in the industry demands that production of copper cease.

Anaconda today is employing approximately 2,000 men. These are mostly caretakers, watchmen, mechanics and engineers, employed and keep it from deteriorating through idleness. While wages have been cut way down, they are still higher than prior to the war.

In addition to its shut-down expenses, Anaconda's bond interest is, of course, continuing. The company has outstanding $75,000,000 6 per cent bonds and $25,000,000 7 per cent bonds, both issues maturing in 1929.

Here is an interest charge of $3,500,000 a year, which with current expenses of $500,000 a month, means that it is costing the world's largest copper producer $10,000,000 a year to keep on earth.

Anaconda, however, has a wealth of fixed and liquid assets and can stand the strain. At the close of last year net current assets exceeded $67,860,000, of which cash and accounts receivable amounted to nearly $25,000,000 and metals accounted to $22,500,000. This latter account has undoubtedly been very much reduced by now. After providing for the bonds at par, Anaconda still has a "net quick" for its 2,231,000 shares of stock.

LOSS OF THE ZR-2 COSTS U. S. MILLION

Washington, Aug. 27.—The United States government will lose a million dollars through the destruction of the dirigible ZR-2 under terms of an agreement entered into with the British Government. The agreement, according to a statement issued by the Navy Department, "provided that in the event of the total loss of this airship (the ZR-2) while under construction or during trials, the two governments would jointly bear the loss on an equal basis."

The United States has paid $1,500,000 to the British Government on the contract cost of $2,000,000 for the ZR-2, the statement added. Accordingly the British Government will turn back $500,000 to the United States.

COTTON MILLS ARE STEADILY GAINING

Cloth Mills Operating From 80 to 85 Per Cent. of Their Capacity

The cotton textile trade reports cloth mills are estimated to be operating from 80 per cent. to 85 per cent. capacity and yarn mills at around 85 per cent. capacity. Mill production is steadily growing and is larger now than at any time this year.

The advance in raw cotton areas the first of the week is a contributing factor to the current improvement of no small importance. Continued unfavorable weather and rapid spread of the boll weevil are making serious inroads into the cotton crop. A small crop is certain and many feel that it will probably not exceed 7,000,000 bales, the smallest crop since 1915.

The advance in prices gives an idea of what can take place where demand persists and production is ruthlessly cut down. Cotton is now up well over four cents from the year's low, and this tendency, if maintained, is bound to force price revisions in textile and yarn goods markets. Usually it is true that once business is headed in the right direction that advance stimulate rather than hamper activity.

Take it all in all, there is an optimistic feeling in cotton textile centres.

LABOR BOARD TO HEAR PENNSYLVANIA ROAD

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The United States Railroad Labor Board will grant a hearing next week to the Pennsylvania Railroad on its petition asking a repeal of the Board's order directing it to hold an election of employe representatives in which the Shop Crafts union shall be recognized as an organization. This announcement was made here today together with the notice that other railroads aprove the Pennsylvania stand in refusing to obey the decision. The hearing will be in the nature of a test case.

URGES CENTRAL OFFICE TO AID VETERANS

Dunderdale Would Have Place Where Manufacturers Can Meet Unemployed

If manufacturers would establish one central employment office for former service men and go there and procure their help, as far as is possible, a big step would be taken to remedy the unemployment question among the veterans.

This is the opinion of G. Harry Dunderdale, superintendent of the State Free Employment Office on Kneeland street, who interviews hundreds of veterans each week.

"The big problem is to get these veterans in touch with the manufacturers when the manufacturers need men," said Mr. Dunderdale. "We do the best we can, but a central office at which nothing but ex-service men called would go a long way to relieve the situation.

A HUMANE MOVE.

"Many of the hundreds of former soldiers and sailors who apply here for work have been wounded or gassed and are unable to do many kinds of work, on account of their physical condition. An appeal should be made to the manufacturers of Greater Boston to attempt to place these men. If the central office idea were carried out the manufacturers would have a better chance to talk with the men and get a line on what they could do. It might take a little more time to inquire into the fitness of the men, but it would be a humane thing and is really due the ex-soldiers.

"Conditions are mighty black right now," said Mr. Dunderdale, "and I have grave fears of the immediate future. An average of more than one hundred ex-service men apply here daily for work and it is impossible to place them."

CONDITIONS GET WORSE.

Mr. Dunderdale produced figures which showed that out of a total of 1,476 ex-service men who have applied at the office this week for work, only 13 men have been given cards of introduction to employers. Of this number but six men have actually reported for work and obtained jobs. Six out of a total of 426 applicants—420 men furnished with nothing but despair.

Instead of growing better conditions are getting worse for the veterans, it was pointed out. During the past month only 512 positions for men were open at the office. Many of these, Mr. Dunderdale pointed out, were such that the veterans could not fill them.

"Most of the lads who gave so much in the war," said the superintendent, "Something ought and must be done for them."

Rules U. S. Custom Law Is Void in Liquor Seizure

By International News Service.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27—Federal Judge Tuttle has today ruled the customs laws of the United States, so far as they relate to the importation of liquor, are null and void.

Automobiles used in smuggling liquor into the United States from Canada cannot be seized, the court decided. Prohibition officers will, therefore, have to act exclusively under the Volstead law, which provides that the owner of a seized car may recover it if he can prove his innocence. Under the old customs law the car was confiscated if liquor was found, regardless of the guilt or innocence of the owner of the car.

HOUSING TRUST STOCKHOLDERS MAY LOSE ALL

Concern Received $31,964.43 From Home Builders, Audit Reveals

Stockholders who invested their savings in the United States Housing Trust, expecting the erection of homes for themselves, may lose their entire investment, according to auditors going over the books of the trustees, now under arrest.

The auditing reveals that 203 creditors gave $21,964.43 to the trustees of the Housing Trust. Not a house has been finished with the funds provided. Assets of but sixty-nine cents were found deposited to the trust's credit in a bank, and that sum the bank now claims as compensation for handling the account.

S. L. Kenney, No. 47 Granite street, Cambridge, who holds a claim for $1,464, is said to have declared he understands all bondholders will lose their entire investment, as all the real estate of the trust is mortgaged.

Kenney, a carpenter, acted as foreman on the construction on his house, partially completed. The only other house on which work was started is that of James G. Wood, No. 22 Winslow avenue, West Somerville.

INFLUENCE OF RUSSIA IN EAST GROWS

British Power in Persia Destroyed by Soviet Giving Up Rails and Wires

By LOUISE BRYANT

Copyright, 1921, by Universal Service

In order to get a first hand impression of the practical working out of the Soviet policy in the East I traveled a hard but intensely interesting journey over the Kirghiz Steppes, the Desert of Kizil Kum, through Turkestan, Bokhara and to the edge of Persia and Afghanistan. I am the only reporter who has been there in six years. Vast changes have come to pass in that time.

It was not easy to get permission to go. The foreign office in Moscow refused me point blank. They said Bokhara was in a revolutionary state and I would probably be executed. I wrote a note to Lenin and told him how much I wished to go. He arranged everything and in two days I was on my way.

I went to see him before I left.

"It will be one of the most exceptional experiences of your life," he said; "my opinion of the Bokharan revolution is that it is simply a revolt against feudalism; however, you'll find out all about it."

I wanted to know whether the Russians were trying to make Communists out of the Mohammedans first or whether they were more concerned with freeing them from western domination and then using the strength of that new power as a threat against England and other aggressive powers.

Nothing I could have been more strategic than the Soviet method of destroying British power in Persia by simply presenting Persia with the railways and telegraph lines which had formerly belonged to old Russia and by removing Russian troops.

At the same time the Russian army in Turkestan, far from being a menace, became a friendly power to back up Persia in case of foreign aggression. The emirs of Khiva and Bokhara were overthrown with the aid of the Soviets, but these states were not forced to be Communistic.

Aside from the strictly political concessions to gain favor with the Mohammedans, the Soviets have made some extraordinary sentimental concessions to the value of which can scarcely be overestimated in Mohammedan countries. Soviet Russia has given back, for example, the sacred Koran of the Calif Osman, which was meant to be kept forever in the Holy City of Samarkand, but which the Russian imperialists had carried away in the library in Petrograd and thereby outraged the whole Muselman world.

When I was in Samarkand in February a Mohammedan official took me through the Mosque, where the sacred book had been restored to its rightful place. Afterwards he led me outside and showed me work of restoration already well begun on some historic old building that dated from the days of Tammerlane.

Bathers at New York Resort Terrified by Man-Eating Shark

New York, Aug. 27.—Scores of bathers at fashionable Southampton Beach were thrown into a wild state of terror when one of their number raised a cry of "shark."

Life guards rushed into the surf with a net and captured the intruder. It was a "blue nose" of the man-eating variety, and measured five feet. It was clubbed to death on the beach.

The shark was the first seen here this season.
